U.S. Probing Seizure of Tanker

PARIS, Jan. 20 (AP)—French and American naval authorities today sought details of the reported seizure of an American oil tanker by two Spanish insurgent war vessels off Barcelona.

The French naval ministry said the French destroyer Vauquelin reported the tanker Nantucket Chief was steaming toward Palma, on insurgent Mallorca, Tuesday.

The Vauquelin sighted the tanker, formerly named the Gulflight, and the insurgent gunboats in the Mediterranean, 50 miles north of the Balearic Islands, which include Mallorca.

The Vauquelin's message confirmed that the Nantucket Chief was flying the American flag and declared she had an American crew.

Both the French navy ministry and the American embassy said it was not determined whether the ship was seized within Spanish territorial waters.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—The American steamship Nantucket Chief was captured by insurgent war vessels as it attempted to deliver its second cargo of gasoline to the Spanish government, Daniel W. Armstrong, vice-president of the Eastern State Petroleum Co., said today.

Armstrong said the ship left Port Arthur, Tex., Nov. 28, landed its cargo off Barcelona, and went to Batum (U. S. S. R.), on the Black Sea, where more gasoline was loaded. On its voyage back to Barcelona with 54,000 barrels of gasoline, it was apprehended by the insurgent craft.

Armstrong said the Nantucket Chief is the old Gulflight, which was torpedoed in 1915 by a German submarine off the Scilly Islands near England.

In this, the first torpedoing of an American vessel during the World War, three lost their lives. The German government offered apologies and reparations.

Roosevelt to Aid 'Little Business'

Plans to Call Number of Small Firms to Take Part in Parleys

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A White House aide said today President Roosevelt would call in small business men soon in seeking co-operative methods of regularizing business and employment.

This was disclosed as the President put forward organization of a continuing, all-embracing council as a method of helping the administration formulate national economic policies. Roosevelt said the council should include small business men.

Thus far, a White House official noted, the presidential conferences have included only captains of industry and finance and labor leaders.

He asserted that hundreds of letters had been received from smaller business men, pointing to this and requesting similar White House audiences.

PICKED AT RANDOM

As a result, the President instructed aides today to go through a stack of these letters, select at random a number of smaller corporation officials, and call them in.

The President's suggestion that labor unions should make public their financial statements left union leaders today both bewildered and angry.

All who could be reached said

Appoints Dorgan Legislative Aide

Mayor Tobin today appointed former Representative Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester city legislative agent at an annual salary of $5000.

He also named Assistant Corporation Counsel Rudolph Robinson as assistant agent to aid in representing the city at the State House.

Close friends of the mayor stated an appointment next month would be that of former City Councillor Henry Selvitella of East Boston as assistant corporation counsel at a salary of $4000 yearly.

Dorgan was an active campaigner for Mayor Tobin. He is a graduate of the Boston University law school and is well known in the Legislature. He is the father of the Teachers' Oath law.

Citizenship for Vicki Baum

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20 (AP)—Vicki Baum, German writer now working in Hollywood, said today she would take the oath of allegiance as an American citizen next week. She has passed her final examinations.

Group in Senate O. K's Reed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—A Senate judiciary sub-committee voted unanimous approval today of the nomination of Solicitor General Stanley F. Reed to be a justice of the Supreme Court.

The vote was taken immediately after the committee concluded a brief hearing on Reed's qualifications.

Chairman Logan (D.) of Kentucky said there was no discussion by the committee members, and that only one protest against confirmation had been received—from a "gentleman in New York," who wrote that he did not personally know the Solicitor General.

The judiciary sub-committee will put the nomination before the full judiciary committee Monday. Prompt approval was expected and final Senate confirmation was slated for early next week.

Errol Flynn Buys Ketch

With Errol Flynn on his way back to Hollywood, it was announced today the Warner Brothers' star had purchased Avenir, 75-foot ketch, from George E. McQuesten of Marblehead.

Flynn arrived in Boston, Tuesday, to buy a boat which he plans to use for a West Indies cruise in the spring.

South Shore Youth, 19, Missing

George Woodward, 19-year-old student son of Ernest C. Woodward, wealthy Rockland business man, has been mysteriously missing for a week, the Boston Evening American learned today.

The student, who lives with his parents in their beautiful home in Rockland's best residential section, attended classes last Thursday at the Bryant & Stratton Commercial School in Boston.

He was last seen, the Evening American learned, at 11 p. m. that day, when he left a party in the Cambridge apartment of a girl student of the school after suddenly announcing he was going to elope.

Today the parents of the missing youth declined to discuss his strange vanishing, but admitted the case is "in the hands of the authorities."

NO MARRIAGE CLUES

Police of Boston and Cambridge, as well as state police, denied that they have been asked to search for the missing student, but school officials said that operatives of the William J. Burns detective agency have discussed the disappearance with them and that young Woodward has not been in school since a week ago today.

It is also learned that detectives have made inquiries at Hampton Beach and at Seabrook, both in New Hampshire, as to whether the student had applied for a marriage license.

There was no record of any such application in either New Hampshire town, however.

Although detectives are declared to have said he was last seen at 11 p. m. that day, a further air of mystery was lent today when the mother of a girl in his home town with whom he is declared to have been keeping company, said he was at the girl's home last Sunday.

SAW GIRL SUNDAY

This girl is Etta Tedeschi, 19, of Belmont street, Rockland, secretary to a Boston naval architect.

According to her mother, Woodward dropped in at the Tedeschi home Sunday morning, returned and spent the afternoon and went out in the evening with Etta.

But from a girl student of Bryant and Stratton's it was learned that young Woodward, at 11 p. m. a week ago today, left a party in her Cambridge apartment after

Police 'Bungling' Hit by 2 Hub Girls

Charge Their Loss Treated Lightly After Report

Already harassed by charges of laxity, police at the Back Bay station today smarted under new accusations of "bungling" their investigation of a $2500 robbery in the Bay State road apartment of two attractive girl radio station employes.

The young women, Marjorie Burns, 28, and Bettie Ragland, 22, revealed that they were compelled to appeal to a friend in a Connecticut city police department to get action from local officers.

Their charges followed less than 24 hours after the Back Bay personnel had been charged with failing to act promptly to solve the slugging of a Back Bay debutante.

The attack was cleared up, police said, with the arrest of 15-year-old Joseph DiOrio, messenger boy, by headquarters detectives. He now awaits arraignment in juvenile court. The youth has allegedly confessed to beating Emily Davis, daughter of socially prominent Dr. Lincoln Davis, as she entered her Beacon street home.

Miss Burns criticized police for declaring the amount of loot stolen from her apartment at less than $300 when she said the cash value was "at least $2500, to say nothing of the sentimental value."

CALLED POLICE

The police who responded to her alarm, she declared, treated the matter "lightly."

The girls said they returned to find the apartment door lock unlatched and the interior ransacked.

Bishop Removes Fasting Dean

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 20 (AP)—Bishop James M. Maxon removed fasting Dean Israel Harding Noe today.

The bishop, recovering from a serious illness, sent a lengthy written communication to the deanery today in which he notified the clergyman he was taking over the duties of St. Mary's Episcopal Cathedral.

This step had been urged for several days by some leaders of the church. It came at a time when the dean apparently was getting much weaker.

The dean, fighting to prove the fact of immortality, made no immediate comment. He has taken no nourishment except the communion wine and wafer for 19 days.

Confines Girls to Rooms

More than 100 Radcliffe College girls have been stricken with a mysterious gastro-intestinal disturbance, the Boston Evening American learned today.

About a dozen cases have been reported in each of the nine undergraduate dormitories, Dr. Florence Gilman, head of the Radcliffe hygiene department, declared.

The physician stated that the ailment was similar to the gastro-intestinal sickness which afflicted about 50 Harvard students early last month.

Although examinations started today at Radcliffe, Dr. Gilman said the girls were still confined to their rooms.

She also stated that about 14 commuters were also reported stricken and were confined to their homes in Greater Boston.

As was the case at Harvard, the cause of the malady was not determined.

Dr. Gilman told the Boston Evening American that, like the outbreak at Harvard, the illness was characteristic by nausea and in some cases fever.

Dr. Gilman believed the upsets might have been caused by nervous tension preceding the examinations.

A check of the food served at the dormitories, she stated, revealed that it was not the cause.

Three extra nurses, Dr. Gilman revealed, were assigned since there is no infirmary at the college. One nurse is regularly on duty at each dormitory.

Bertram Hall, graduate dormitory, was the only building unaffected.

Burglar Suspect Captured on Roof

Captured on the roof of an insurance building in Roxbury early today, a 31-year-old New York man insisted he was there "for family reasons."

An electric drill, sledge hammer and other tools in his possession, he explained, were to be used for auto repairs.

Officials of the insurance company reported $5000 was in the safe of their offices.

Business Gives Its Remedy for 'Recession' Ills

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Here are the highlights of the recommendations made to President Roosevelt by Secretary Roper's business advisory council as a means of ending the recession.

WAGES AND HOURS

A fresh study of this subject should be made with the co-operation of the representatives of labor and industry who participated in the administration of NRA. Agreed with the President's objective of legislation to "end starvation wages and intolerable hours."

HOUSING

Pledged co-operation in the general policy of seeking to reduce the costs of home construction.

AGRICULTURE

Farm income must be protected through federal legislation to ensure stability of the whole economic system.

HOLDING COMPANIES

Agreed with principle of "geographic decentralization of industry" but deplored "any general move to outlaw proper holding companies."

PUBLIC UTILITIES

Avowed sympathy with elimination of utility pyramiding but is "disturbed" by the administration utilities conflict. Hopes abuses can be eliminated without "crippling" industry.

LABOR RELATIONS

Privilege must be attended by responsibility. (This was taken to mean that labor unions should be made legally responsible.)

MONEY POLICY

Recovery would be hampered by further cheapening of the dollar or "pump priming." Such actions would probably retard it.

TAXATION

Undistributed profits tax and capital gains tax should be modified as a means of stimulating of capital into private industry.

RAILROADS

A financially sound railroad situation will aid recovery. Approved in general recent statements of the President on this subject.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Present law must be amended to provide some stability of the system and to ensure adequate safeguards.

BUSINESS PRACTISES

The anti-trust laws should be revised to make them more specific. Monopolies are incompatible with democracy except in industries where monopoly is found necessary in the public interest under government regulation.

Scotch Lawyer, Kin Of Carnegie, to Wed

EDINBURG, Scotland, Jan. 20—An Edinburg attorney, J. S. Gordon Thomson, said today he expects to marry Miss Louise Miller of New York City, granddaughter of the late Andrew Carnegie, next August.

He met Miss Miller several years ago when she was staying with her grandmother, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, at Skibo Castle, near Darnoch. Miss Miller's mother was Margaret Carnegie, daughter of the steel magnate.

Calm U. S. Thinking Urged by Wheeler

Chicago, Jan. 20 (INS)—Confused thinking on national problems at Washington and among the nation's business men and consumers is threatening democratic government, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana declared today.

"The time is here when the nation's business men, its financiers, its consumers, its labor leaders and its agricultural spokesmen must work out our problems by sound and dispassionate thinking," he said.

Chautemps Wins Strikers Pay Raise

PARIS, Jan. 20 (AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps and his newly formed government won the first step today in efforts to arbitrate recurring labor disputes. Paris truck drivers and employers agreed in principle to an average 8¼ per cent wage increase to meet increased living costs. The truck men struck December 23, and still held possession of a number of garages today. Employers demanded their evacuation before the final agreement was signed.

Business Group Plan to Be Put Up to Congress

Roosevelt Will Send Special Message Within Fortnight

that they made "public" their financial reports, although most of them defined "making public" as giving the statements to their members.

At the White House, it was said that many of the letters from the small business men complained of the capital gains tax.

NO TIME SET

Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, told reporters the President had set no time for his business conferences. He added that the new advisory council was in the formative stage.

Consumers, investors, credit men, farmers, laborers, distributors, transportation men, financiers and big and little business men—all should have a voice, Roosevelt told 49 prominent industrialists in an initial conference yesterday.

The President and his visitors, who compose Secretary of Commerce Roper's Business Advisory Council, harmoniously discussed broad proposals for stemming the recession. Their meeting in the cabinet room next to the President's office lasted 90 minutes.

ERADICATE UNCERTAINTIES

The council members, saying the United States possesses all factors needed for prosperity, if they are put to use, told the President in a formal statement of their views:

"Uncertainties that exist in the hearts of men today must be eradicated."

As a result, industry today enjoyed a much clearer picture of the President's program to offset the recession. The President in effect agreed to give "the great body of investors, large and small, reassurance as to the direction reform is to take."

It probably will come in a special message to Congress within the next two weeks.

Roosevelt also put his general approval on the following statements of the business leaders:

REVISES HIS VIEWS

There should be no further cheapening of the dollar or large-scale pump-priming of industry.

Revision of the undistributed profits tax and the capital gains tax is imperative.

Before "crystallizing" any reform policies for holding companies, the administration should consult with the Advisory Council. Roosevelt retreated somewhat from his blanket indictment of holding companies, conceding that some of them make for mass efficiency and are in the public interest.

There should be no fear of destruction of public utilities through government competition. The President assured the 50 men who canvassed the situation with him that his misunderstanding with the power interests applied to only 15 per cent of the industry.

Outmoded anti-trust laws should be revised so "the co-operation within industry attempted under the NRA" may be practiced without fear of federal interference. This "co-operation" would take the form of planned production or "regularization of employment" as the advisory council prefers to call it.

PROTECTION OF LABOR

Roosevelt's exceptions to the council's proposals, in the main, were designed to protect labor.

Whereas the council suggested "a fresh study" be made of hour-wage legislation now pending before Congress, the President expressed the wish and hope that such studies neither be delayed nor prolonged to the extent that would make action at this session of Congress impossible.

Whereas the council said of collective bargaining that "where there is privilege there must be responsibility" and urged enactment of the principal into law, the President suggested an approach by "common consent" instead.

He proposed a listing and reporting of expenditures and receipts of labor organizations instead of compulsory incorporation which the business leaders apparently favored.

LEADERS PLEASED

It became increasingly apparent Roosevelt was about to recommend modification of the anti-trust laws provided industry and labor can get together on an annual wage basis.

Among Bay State representatives on the Roper business advisory council who called on the President are Lincoln Filene, well known Boston merchant; Henry S. Dennison, president of the Dennison Manufacturing Company in Framingham, and H. P. Kendall, president of the Kendall Company, Boston.

Bay State to Pay $21,000,000 in Jobless Wages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Arthur G. Rotch, former Massachusetts state relief director, today told the Senate unemployment committee he estimated 120,000 persons in Massachusetts would be eligible for unemployment compensation payments, and that $21,000,000 would be paid out there in 1938.

He said payments would average $8 a week for five weeks.

He said there were indications of an increase in relief demands in Massachusetts in the next three months. Of the 80,000 on direct relief in December, 58,414 were classified as employable, he said.

Rotch urged local control of relief with federal contributions. He favored President Roosevelt's proposal for establishment of a federal welfare department. Federal grants should be made for all forms of relief, to one central agency in each state, he said.

78,099 ON WPA HERE

John J. McDonough, Massachusetts WPA administrator, said that as of January 12, there were 78,099 persons on WPA rolls in the state. This was an increase from 61,000 in June, he said.

He said the Massachusetts WPA attempted to effect turnover in personnel each 18 months. There has been no difficulty in obtaining approval of projects, he said.

Rotch, who represented the Community Federation of Boston and the Committee on Public Relief of the Boston Council of Social Agencies, said he believed Federal funds "should be granted to states based on the comparative needs of the states, taking into consideration what each state can raise itself."

He declared that a "preferred class of employable relief recipients" had been created—those employables needing relief who are fortunate to get on the WPA rolls.

INCREASE IN RELIEF

"The rest have had to stay on local relief rolls because of lack of funds," he said. "This state of affairs will be even more pronounced this winter because of the present recession.

"Many employables will have to seek help—they will turn to the local relief authorities and there will be little chance of their getting on the WPA because there are already large numbers on Detroit relief who have been hoping for the opportunity to get on the WPA and who have a priority position over the newcomers.

"I also feel that many of the WPA now feel that the government should continue to support them and do very little to seek jobs in private industry and take care of themselves."

These Firemen Take No Chances

U. S. Chamber Heads Ask For More Tax Revision

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (INS)—Spokesmen for the United States Chamber of Commerce today told the House ways and means committee that heavy corporation taxation is a strong obstacle to recovery.

Adopting a conciliatory tone and praising the program of the tax sub-committee as an improvement on the present law, the spokesmen for organized business said the tax relief provided is not enough.

Fred H. Clausen of Horicon, Wis., chairman of the Chamber's committee on federal finance, headed the witnesses. They included also Ellsworth C. Alvord, Washington lawyer; Henry B. Fernald of New York and Raymond H. Berry of Detroit.

The Chamber's position was stated as follows:

1—Proposed revision of undistributed profits tax grants relief to business, but the tax should be repealed outright.

2—The proposed revision of capital gains taxes also is an improvement, but does not go far enough.

3—Changes in estate and gift taxes unnecessarily place burden upon comparatively small estates.

Clausen described the report of the tax sub-committee as "a sincere effort on your part, under very hampering limitations, to deal with a serious situation."

He opposed the administration decision that any tax changes must not lower the total volume of government revenues. He pointed out that taxes on business have leaped 30 per cent in two years.

U. S. Business Upturn Visioned by Chester

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (INS)—A widespread business upturn during the year was predicted today by Colby M. Chester, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Appearing before the Senate unemployment committee, the chairman of General Foods Corporation based his optimistic prediction on a survey of business conditions of approximately 40 leading industries represented in his association.

They included steel, publications, oil, building supplies, automobiles and shipbuilding.

URGES COOPERATION

"Two-thirds of the companies expect improvement before the end of the year and opinion is about equally divided as to whether recovery will come in the first or the latter half of the year," Chester said.

Chester urged full cooperation between business and government to make recovery permanent, called for a clarification of administartion policies toward business, and a cessation of the "dog fight" between certain business leaders and administration spokesmen.

"Business can take most anything on the chin, if it knows what the rules are," he said. "We are ready and willing to go ahead."

"Do you think that the speeches made by Secretary of Interior Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson helped any?" asked Senator Davis (R.) of Pennsylvania.

"I don't think that any of that stuff helps," Chester replied, "but the administration is not entirely to blame."

Asked by Chairman Byrnes (D.) of South Carolina, what Congress could do to help stop the recession, Chester replied:

"I visualize the situation in this country as serious. And I think the public is pretty well fed up on the fact that business, labor and the government seem unable to agree on a program. I think we ought to get together. And the sooner the better."

As one of immediate measures to "recovery," Chester recommended modification of the surplus profits tax and capital gains tax. It would unleash a flow of capital, he said.

2 New Air Raids Made on Valencia

MADRID, Jan. 20 (AP)—Insurgent air raiders today twice attacked Valencia, not yet recovered from the three terrific bombing raids of yesterday which caused "exceedingly large" casualties.

No estimate of casualties or damage in today's raids was immediately available. Six bombing planes from Palma, insurgent base on the Island of Mallorca, participated in the raids.

Seeks New Funds For Nazi Probe

An additional $2000 appropriation to complete their work was scheduled to be sought before the Ways and Means Committee today by members of the special commission investigating Communist, Nazi and Fascist activities in this state.

The original appropriation was $3000. Senator Sybil Holmes of Brookline, chairman of the commission, has already submitted a preliminary report.

Accept Resignation Of Currency Head

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (INS)—President Roosevelt today accepetd the resignation of J. F. T. O'Connor as Comptroller of the Currency, but asked the Californian not to relinquish his office until April 1, because of "important unfinished work in connection with the payment of dividends to depositors in closed national banks."

O'Connor tendered his resignation to take care of "pressing matters," in California. It is generally understood he intends to become a candidate for governor.

Hurley Returns, Flood Control Still in Air

Visit With President Fails to Settle Controversy

Still split with President Roosevelt over flood control, Governor Hurley returned from Washington today.

With the five other New England chief executives, Governor Hurley conferred with the President for more than an hour yesterday.

On their departure the governors were no nearer a solution than when they arrived at the White House.

The stumbling block was whether the federal government or the interested states shall control and hold titles to flood control projects planned along the Connecticut and Merrimack rivers.

HOPEFUL OF SETTLEMENT

Governor Hurley indicated that he was optimistic that "definite and favorable" action would come out of the White House conference.

He said the technical experts representing the governors were conferring with federal authorities in Washington in an attempt to reach a solution.

The governor declared taht he had told the Massachusetts representatives, headed by Miss Elizabeth Herlihy, chairman of the state planning board, to remain in Washington until they obtain some definite promise or decision.

Although his meeting with the President was the first since his recent message to the Legislature in which he opposed the New Deal attitude on child labor and flood control, Governor Hurley said the President was "cordial" and that they discussed nothing except flood control.

SEES COMPROMISE

Meanwhile, in Hartford, Ct., Governor Wilbur L. Cross, chairman and spokesman of the New England Governors' Conference, stated on arrival from Washington:

"The next step toward some solution of the problem will probably come when the technical experts of the six New England states meet."

He said the meeting would probably take place soon in Boston.

Also optimistic that a compromise between the state and the Federal government would be reached soon, Governor Cross said:

"The situation is not hopeless. You never know when a break is coming."

GOV. AIKEN SWITCHES

It was reported in Washington today that Governor George D. Aiken of Vermont switched his feelings yesterday and now favors government control of the projects.

If the Vermont governor is against state ownership, he has joined what is reported to be a large force of Democratic New England congressmen who are following in line with the administration policy of low-cost, federal power projects.

The McCormack-Brown amendment to the flood control bill of 1936, which stipulates that the federal government purchase all land for dam sites, appeared today in Washington as the only compromise on which the governors and supporters of the administration might get together.

Outright federal purchase of the lands for the Connecticut and Merrimack valleys projects would save Massachusetts about $2,000,000 and New England some $7,000,000 but cost them all incomes from any power systems.

New Consort Views Ceremony From Behind Lattice

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 20 (AP)—Egypt's boy King Farouk was married today to his dark-eyed Rose of the Nile, Farida, amid scenes of Oriental splendor dazzling as in the ancient days of the Pharaohs.

But Farida Zulficar, 16-year-old daughter of an Egyptian high court judge, was not present at the ceremony in Koubbeh Palace, which made her the second queen of Egypt since Cleopatra.

Excluded by Moslem custom, she watched the rites through a lattice from an adjoining room.

As the marriage contract was signed guns of the ancient citadel and others throughout the country crashed in royal salute to tell joyous Egyptians their king was wed.

Farida's father and the bridegroom signed the Moslem contract which made her the wife of the 17-year-old ruler of Egypt's 16,000,000 people.

GAY CELEBRATION

The bride had slipped away unexpectedly from her Heliopolis villa, wearing a gray coat, skirt and small black toque and with her mother drove to the palace in a closed car.

Wild cheering and the clamor of bells and guns greeted her.

Queen Mother Nazli and the King's four younger sisters watched the ceremony with the bride and her mother.

The crashing guns unleashed three days of celebrations throughout the land of the Sphinx. Shaggy Bedouin horsemen, who had slept in the streets after converging on the city from the desert, plunged madly about, firing their rifles into the air.

Drums throbbed, dancers wriggled and Egypt's wine bowls overflowed.

WEARS SILVER GOWN

Farida didn't even get to wear her silver lace wedding gown with its 20-foot train and veil of equal length until the afternoon at a reception in the palace.

The Moslem wedding ceremony was held on the ground floor at Koubbeh Palace. It was conducted by Sheikh Moustapha El Maraghy, rector of Azhar University and supreme religious authority in Egypt.

He was assisted by the Grand Mufti of Egypt, the president of the supreme religious court, and the president of the Cairo religious court.

The purple robes and white turbans of these four sheikhs contrasted with formal morning attire of the guests. Farouk himself wore the black and gold uniform of a field marshal.

The ceremony lasted but ten minutes.

RECITES VOW 3 TIMES

Then the bridegroom-King extended his right hand, with thumb upright, to Farida's father, Youssef Zulficar Pasha. They pressed thumbs.

The officiating sheikh covered the handclasp with a silk cloth, asked Farouk whether he accepted the bride, and the father whether Farida accepted Farouk.

Both assented, and the bride's father said:

"I betroth to your majesty my daughter, Farida."

The King replied:

"I accept her betrothal to myself from thee, and take her under my care and bind myself to offer her my protection. Ye who are present, bear witness."

The king repeated the vow thrice, after which the contract was signed by the king, the bride's father, Sheikh El Maraghy, the grand chamberlain and the chief of the royal cabinet. The latter two acted as witnesses.

SETS DIVORCE SUM

The contract was like that of any Egyptian marriage, except that it did not mention a dowry, which Moslem husbands give to their brides. It did stipulate, however, the sum Farouk would pay Farida in the event of divorce.

There were refreshments and each guest was given a $200 golden candy box as a souvenir.

Ten miles away, in Cairo, crowds surged through the streets, dancing and shouting, "Long live Farouk!" Bullocks were slaughtered in every district and the meat distributed to the poor.

Farida delegated her father to give her in marriage to the King a half hour before the palace ceremony, in a legal transaction in the presence of two witnesses, at her Heliopolis home.

In addition to her father and an uncle, there were 23 royal princes, Premier Mahmoud Pasha and cabinet ministers at the Koubbeh ceremony.

After a week-end of wedding receptions and teas, the bride will retire from the public eye—her $25,000 trousseau, 45 dresses of gossamer and lace, shimmering satin and glittering jewels, for Farouk alone to see.

They will go Sunday to the King's country estate, Inchass, 40 miles northeast of Cairo, for their honeymoon.

Floodlights will light the city tonight for continuation of the festivities. The King will review his troops tomorrow, and hold the first of three state banquets in Abdin Palace, to which have been invited 1500 guests.

Well, It Looks Like Case for Doghouse

HAVERHILL, Jan. 20—Wells C. Smith, Haverhill dog officer, today was undecided whether to "warn the defendant" or "prosecute."

His quandary developed after complaint of Oscar A. Tuttle of Green street that a dog had stolen his milk for two weeks. The animal knocked the bottles over, drinking the spilled milk.

Lynn Baker Swims, Gives Beach Party

Steve Guerin, Lynn baker, today observed his 45th birthday by taking a swim at King's Beach, Swampscott.

He then had a beach party for friends—serving cake and ice cream.

It wasn't so bad, though, because the mercury had climbed to 40.

G-Men Find Body Of Ross, Killed By Kidnapers

Searching Party Led By J. Edgar Hoover to Dig Up Remains

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (INS)—The body of Charles S. Ross, kidnaped and murdered Chicago millionaire, was found today by G-men in the far northern part of Wisconsin, it was announced by an agent attached to the federal bureau of investigation's office here.

He added that Chief G-man Edgar Hoover headed the party, awaiting equipment to dig the body out of its grave.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 20 (INS)—In bitter secrecy, special squads of G-Men today strove to piece out an ironclad case of kidnaping and murder against Peter Anders, 30-year-old lumberjack.

Under the personal direction of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, they sought factual evidence to back up Anders' confession of having killed Charles S. Ross of Chicago after collecting a $50,000 ransom.

Reports were current that not only the body of Ross, but also that of Anders' accomplice, James Atwood Gray, had been found. The prisoner was said to have admitted slaying his confederate to avoid splitting the ransom.

Equally without authentication were reports that the G-men had a third kidnaper in custody and that they were combing gambling houses in the St. Paul area for the residue of the ransom. Anders had only $14,100 left when seized at the Santa Anita racetrack, near Los Angeles.

The rumors also included statements that Anders was suspected of "other kidnapings" and various sources persisted in the belief that he had been connected with the kidnap-killing of 10-year-old Charles Mattson in Tacoma, Wash.

Hoover flatly denied this possibility, but Dr. W. W. Mattson admitted and then denied his other children had been taken to view Anders, while a check showed neither youngster attended school yesterday.

Train Leap Convict Taken to Norfolk

Worcester, Jan. 20—Edward J. Moriarty, prisoner who was seriously injured when he dove from the window of a moving train in a desperate attempt to escape, was moved from Worcester City Hospital to Norfolk Prison Colony today.

Dr. George A. Marlees of the Worcester institution said X-rays had revealed that Moriarty's leap had not fractured his skull and spine as believed at first.

Daughter of Once Richest Duke In Poor House

78-Year-Old Spanish Woman Penniless And Hungry

MADRID, Jan. 20 (AP)—Penniless and broken by age and illness, Dolores Tellez-Giron y Domine, daughter of the last Duke of Osuna and member of a once fabulously rich Spanish family, has entered a home for aged and destitute working women.

Her petition for admission said she was without food or means of support. When authorities granted it, she was taken to the institution by friends from the miserable room she had occupied. She is 78 years old.

Her uncle, to whose title her father succeeded, was the famous Duke of Osuna, once the richest man in Spain and one of the richest in the world.

About the middle of the nineteenth century the duke boasted he could travel from either the French or the Portuguese border to Madrid without leaving his own estates.

The story is told that once, annoyed because a meal was not prepared when he arrived unexpectedly at one of his 30 castles, he ordered that thereafter meals be prepared daily for him and his party in all his castles, even though he visited some of these only once a year.

He had the best opportunity to display and spend his fortune as ambassador to Russia, where he tried even to outshine the Czar.

Hearing once that the Czar had purchased an extremely expensive sable coat for himself, it is told the duke ordered two such coats and presented them to his footman and coachman to the great annoyance of the imperial court.

He was said to have dissipated a huge fortune in less than 20 years. The title disappeared with the death of his brother, Dolores Tellez-Giron y Domine's father.

Heirs to $65,000 Sought in Boston

Police were asked today to help locate relatives of a Mrs. Kate Williams, who died recently at Pasadena, Cal., leaving an estate valued at $65,000.

The request was made in a letter to police headquarters from Mrs. Annie K. Barton of Armstrong street, Jamaica Plain. The letter stated that Mrs. Williams had a daughter who was married to a police officer "in or around Boston."

JOSEPH RINEHART FUNG DONG

Stranger to English Words

White 'Son' Joins 'Old Fung' Again N.Y. Chinese Gay

U. S. Boy, Abandoned By Mother, Reared In China, Is Back

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (INS)—Chinatown rejoiced today, for Fung Dong, affectionately called "Old Fung" by his friends, is reunited with his favorite son—a white son—whom the old Chinese adopted 19 years ago.

The boy, born Joseph Rinehart, in Inwood, L. I., burst into tears as he returned to New York, because he was frightened by an uproarious reception at Pennsylvania Station that approached the proportions of a riot.

Although he looks like a typical American lad, Joseph knows no other life than that of the Chinese village of Nam Hoi, in which he was reared. He speaks no English, only Chinese.

ABANDONED BY MOTHER

When he was a baby, two months old, his mother, Ana Mullally Rinehart, "Old Fung" said, abandoned him in his summertime chop suey restaurant at Rockaway Beach on Long Island.

He told how he took Joseph—or Fung Kwok Keung—to his wife, Tan Sn, in China, so that the boy might know of a mother's love.

Approaching manhood, Joseph felt he was being apart from these Chinese youths with whom he had played and gone to a Chinese high school. In his letters to Fung Dong, he asked to be brought to America.

PRIVATE SCHOOL

Fung indicated he intends sending the boy to a private school and then he wants him to learn American business methods in the shop of his very dear friend, Y. Tsang, Chinese importer.

Joseph left Hongkong on the Empress of Canada December 22, wearing his first suit of Western clothes, a navy blue jacket, gray trousers, brown shoes, gray hat and coat.

After the reception here, the sobbing boy and his foster father were whirled off to Chinatown, where an American boy sought rest among the Chinese.

Collie Faces New Death Sentence for Boy Bite

NORTH ANDOVER, Jan. 20—Sandy, four-year-old collie who barely escaped execution for viciousness last month, is in bad with the law again.

Animal Inspector William Smith ordered the dog impounded for 12 days after the health department reported that he had bitten a 10-year-old boy.

His latest offense may cost him his life. Smith said the board of selectmen, which ruled that the animal's owners must keep him permanently restrained, now have the power to sentence him to death. They are expected to act at their next meeting on Monday.

According to the health department report, Sandy yesterday attacked and bit the legs of Horace Hayman, 10, of Perry street, as he walked along Dudley street on his way to go skating.

The dog is also said to have done serious damage to another dog in a fight recently.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Spooner of Third street, Sandy was tried by the selectmen when 18 residents of the town charged he was a menace to life and property.

Britain Agrees to Recognize United Erin

De Valera, Delegates Start Home After "Peace Talks"

LONDON, Jan. 20 (INS)—Prime Minister Eamonn De Valera of Eire and his delegates to the Anglo-Irish "peace talks" departed for Dublin today, with a conditional British agreement to recognize a united Ireland as the chief fruit of their efforts.

The Eire delegation left London at 8:45 a. m., making no new statement.

Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain and his colleagues in the historic peace conference promised to recognize a united Ireland, bringing Northern Ireland into the new state of Eire, once the Dublin government and the Ulster regime manage to get together for unity.

This accord was the chief accomplishment of the talks, which ended last night. Progress was registered in other matters, such as trade and defense questions, but with no decisions or commitments made.

Chamberlain promised Britain would not obstruct Eire's attempts to persuade the people of Ulster that a united Irish nation is what they need. But he stipulated that Dublin refrain from coercion of either Ulster or England.

British Dominions Secretary Malcolm MacDonald will soon go to Ireland to continue the work started here, it was stated. A final conference will be held later in London, after details of proposed accords have been threshed out and drawn up.

Rich Rockland Man's Student Son Vanishes

suddenly announcing he was going to elope.

Mrs. Tedeschi declared that Woodward had made a date with her daughter to attend a basketball game last Tuesday night, but he failed to appear for the engagement and Etta went to the game alon.

Over the telephone today from Boston, Etta told her mother she did not know Woodward intended going away and that she knew nothing of his being missing until she had read the account in the Boston Evening American.

QUERIED BY DETECTIVES

By two girl students at Bryant & Stratton's, however, the Boston Evening American was told that men identifying themselves as Burns detectives had questioned them several times with regard to the missing youth.

One of these girls, Lilly A. Bogach, 18, of Columbia street, Cambridge, said it was from her apartment that Woodward left at 11 p. m. a week ago today after suddenly declaring his intention of eloping.

Miss Bogach said she received a telephone call late that day from Woodward, asking that Miss Bogach and her boy friend join Woodward and a girl in a Cambridge cafe.

She kept the appointment and said today that Woodward and the other girl had pawned their rings to pay the cafe check.

In the evening, according to Miss Bogach, the party adjourned to her apartment, where Woodward remained until he made his sudden announcement regarding elopement.

Miss Bogach said she drew Woodward into another room of the apartment and attempted to talk him out of his plan.

Another girl student at the business school, Ruth Corkery, 18, of Mount Auburn street, Cambridge, told the Evening American today that she was with Woodward for a while after school on the day of his vanishing.

GEORGE WOODWARD

She said that Woodward borrowed a dollar from a clerk in a drugstore near the school in Boylston street and that then she and Woodward went to a nearby restaurant.

According to Miss Corkery, she left Woodward at the Park street subway entrance about 6 p. m. He was standing on the Mall along Tremont street, she said, as she went down to take the Cambridge subway train and go home to Mount Auburn street, where her mother runs a home-cooked food shop.

Ruth declared that she had known the missing student for three months, but said her only interest in him is his piano playing.

The missing student's home is in Market road, Rockland. His father is director of the Rockland Welting Co. of that town, and the family have long been prominent socially on the South Shore.

Pianist Missing 2 Weeks From Back Bay

Richardson Brown, 35, Gone From Marlboro Street Lodgings

Mysterious disappearance of a 35-year-old pianist from his lodging house on Marlboro street, Back Bay, since Sunday night, was revealed today by the missing persons' bureau at police headquarters.

The man, Richardson Brown, a former student at the Harvard school of music, was last seen by his landlady, Mrs. Sophie Brennan, according to police.

Brown, police said, was associated with the Works Progress Administration music project and at the time of his disappearance had several private engagements booked.

Mrs. Brennan told police that she saw Brown about 7 p. m. on the night he vanished.

That same evening, the landlady told police, she had seen the musician burn "a lot of papers."

Mrs. Brennan said that the day before he disappeared Brown had deposited $45 in the bank and on the day following his Works Progress Administration check arrived in the mail.

The former Harvard student was reported missing at police headquarters by Mrs. Luther Eastman of Grove street, Auburndale.

She added that the police of the Back Bay station had not been to her lodging house.

The missing man's mother, Mrs. Alice A. Brown, a widow, of Groveland street, Auburndale, declared she last saw her son Sunday and that he appeared "very much worried and downhearted."

She added that he had been "downhearted" since the death of her husband George C. Brown, a wholesale produce dealer, five years ago.

Brackman Backs Bill for Home Judges' Aid

Designed to Block Discrimination In Some Courts

"There is too much abuse of this practice of calling in outside justices because of friendship or political machinations," said Senator David M. Brackman of Roxbury today.

He was speaking before the legislative committee on judiciary in favoring a bill ot prohibit the calling in of special justices of another district court while one is available in the court where a case is to be tried.

The bill was filed as a result of alleged conditions in Lynn District Court.

DICRIMINATION CHARGED

It was charged several weeks ago that Judge Israel Cherry of that court was discriminated against by calling in a judge from another district court while Judge Cherry was available.

Atty. Starr Parsons of Lynn, speaking in favor of the bill, said that the practice of calling in outside judges to Lynn district court was begun by Judge Henry T. Lummus of the Supreme Court when he was presiding judge of Lynn district court.

"Judge Lummus had the excuse that he didn't have any members of his own court available," said Parsons. "Every associate judge of the Lynn district court is qualified in every respect. Every one likes and respects Judge Cherry.

LIKE TO KNOW JUDGE

"Members of the bar in Lynn are entitled to some consideration and they would like to know the judge before whom they are going to try their cases."

Senator Albert Cole of Lynn and Rep. Abraham I. Zimon of Boston were also recorded in favor of the measure.

Soviet Spy Ring Broken in Rome

Rome, Jan. 20 (INS)—A vast Soviet spy ring, headed by a Russian engineer reputed to be a cousin of Josef Stalin, was smashed today by Fascist secret police.

Grigor Grigoriev, 40, the ring leader, was sentenced to 30 years in prison. The remaining 11 members, of whom one is a Pole, received sentences ranging from 10 to 20 years.

Fascist sources said that the ring had been operating for nearly two years. Grigoriev, it was alleged, purchased valuable military information with large bribes. In some cases he paid as high as $22,000 for war secrets.

1st Lady Shifts Stand on War

Echoes Mate in Talk To Peace Crusaders

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (INS)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, long an advocate of peace, today had warned a peace conference that the United States must draw away from the "peace at any price" principle.

Echoing a recent credo of her husband-President, Mrs. Roosevelt told 700 delegates to the conference on the cause and cure of war that this country must face world conditions "realistically."

She emphasized the United States wanted to pay a high price for peace, but she attached one qualification, as follows:

"I always want to see this nation able to decide between right and wrong."

Mrs. Roosevelt cautioned the delegates, an organization which has crusaded for peace for more than a decade, that the nation must not draw away from the world arena, shying and fearful of facing facts as they exist.

Beef Cost Down 30 Per Cent

A reduction of more than 30 per cent in the price of beef in Boston since last August, and more than 10 per cent in pork, was revealed today in a letter to Governor Hurley from Edward M. Synan, president of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association.

Synan stated:

"Meat producers, packers and retail distributors now ask you to instruct state departments to proceed constructively and vigorously toward carrying to the people of the Commonwealth the message that meat prices are lower."

Drive on Jews Perils Finances in Rumania

BUCHAREST, Jan. 20 (AP)—Premier Octavian Goga's anti-Semitic government appeared today to be facing a period of economic uncertainty.

Since Goga took the governmental helm in Rumania December 28, the prices of almost all staples have gone down. Government economists said the development was to be expected because of business disturbance due to sudden application of anti-Semitic measures.

Last night, saying it acted on behalf of the peasants, the finance ministry arbitrarily ordered cuts on the prices of cotton goods, petroleum products and salt. The price of standard quality beef also was reduced.

A finance ministry official said that prices, "heretofore controlled by Jewish merchants," were being slashed for the benefit of Rumanian citizens.

The opposition element said the government unexplainably was giving impetus to the downward tendency in all markets which started with threats to eliminate most Jewish business without an adequate period of readjustment.

Former Premier Alexander Vaida-Voevod, head of the Nationalist Party, and himself an anti-Semite, today said the slump was due to exclusion of Jewish buyers from markets.

The former premier said he believed there was a chance that Goga might receive a working parliamentary majority in elections March 2, but that even so, the jolt of trying to eliminate about one million Jews from Rumania's economic and social life on short notice would be a severe trial for any government.

Chinese in Rally At Wuhu, Claim Victory Near

Native Forces Stage Furious Struggle West of Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Jan. 20—Chinese forces claimed new successes on the battle front west of Shanghai today, asserting they have surrounded Japanese-held Wuhu, and fall of the city is expected "at any moment."

These reports, emanating from the Chinese capital at Hankow, were not verified here, but it was believed that heavy fighting was in progress on the Wuhu front.

Heavy rain and snow hampered Japanese operations in the North, where the Japanese columns were held practically at a standstill pending improvement in the weather.

Along the southern sector of the important Pukow-Tientsin railroad, the Japanese were said to be advancing steadily.

Here in Shanghai, Japanese police pressed their campaign against Chinese terrorism by making 98 more arrests, bringing the total to 187 native suspects—most of whom were netted in a series of raids in the International Settlement and French concession.

Reports from Peiping stated the Japanese-fostered provisional Chinese regime there had formally renamed that city Peking.

Shanghai British circles received word today that Japanese forces at Tientsin had explained as a "misunderstanding" a threat to invade the British concession—which could have meant an armed clash with British troops.

The First Lancashire Fusiliers—only 850 fighting men facing thousands—had stood ready to repel the threatened invasion.

Seeks Soviet Aid for China?

Dr. Sun in Moscow On Mystery Trip

MOSCOW, Jan. 20 (AP)—Dr. Sun Fo, chairman of the Chinese government's legislative council, has been in Moscow the last three days, Pravda, Communist party organ, announced today.

The purpose of the long-expected visit remained undisclosed, but reports have said Dr. Sun would come to solicit a greater measure of Soviet support in China's war against Japan.

Dr. Sun's father, Sun Yat-Sen, founder of the Chinese Republic, in 1924 obtained Soviet aid for his nationalist revolution, which led to foundation of the Nanking regime Japan now is trying to destroy.

Asks Balm

Puts $25,000 Value on Love

Divided His Kisses With Two Girls

Vera Pollack Seeks $25,000 for Lost Love

Balm Suit Youth Tells of Courting Both at Once

Hugs and kisses for Vera Pollack two nights a week and for another girl two other nights was the regular program for Philip Swartz, 26, of Brockton, he admitted today in Suffolk Superior Civil Court.

Swartz took the stand to testify in his own defense in the $25,000 breach of promise suit filed against him by the 25-year-old Roxbury blonde.

"When you used to take Miss Pollack out for a ride you'd hug and kiss her?" he was asked in cross-examination.

"Yes," replied the young accountant. "When you think a lot of a girl you hug and kiss her."

"Then you thought a lot of this girl?"

"Yes, but I also thought a lot of another girl I was going out out with one or two nights a week."

PAID FOR VACATION

"Did you hug and kiss the other girl?"

"Yes," Swartz admitted.

He was called to the stand after Miss Pollack concluded her story of their alleged engagement. She said during the six months' affair Swartz never made her any gifts of candy, never sent her a valentine or a love letter, but he did pay for a two weeks' vacation for both at a New Hampshire summer resort.

She said she made the reservations for two rooms in separate buildings and that he paid for the trip.

After denying she went with any other man while engaged to Swartz, she was asked:

STILL LOVES HIM

"On Aug. 22, 1934, did you still love Phil?"

"Yes," she replied.

"Three days later, when you filed suit for breach of promise, did you love him?"

"I still love him," she sobbed.

Mrs. Joseph Lamber, the girl's mother, testified Swartz called at their home regularly each week for six months and she quoted him as saying:

"I like your daughter. I'm going to marry her."

The story of how the young couple parted came from Swartz. He said he took Miss Pollack for an auto ride one July evening.

"I told her my friends said she was taking me seriously," he testified. "I explained to her I couldn't afford marriage and we should stop going together. When we got home she invited me in, but I refused and she said 'You'll suffer for this.'"

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Dever Proposes Plan to Halt Tax Abuses

Would Take Licenses From Autoists Who Fail to Pay

Revocation of automobile licenses and registration for failure to pay excise taxes was recommended today by Attorney General Paul A. Dever in his annual report to the Legislature.

The Attorney General cited the recently exposed abuses of process by deputy tax collectors as the basis of his legislative proposal.

He further proposed collection of old age assistance and poll taxes by court action and collection of local taxes by local officers.

Other recommendations in the report included:

GREATER POWERS

State supervision of nurses' employment agencies.

Granting of extraordinary powers to conduct criminal investigations.

A law to govern installment sales.

Charging that the endless chain system of selling merchandise had been used often to perpetrate "fraudulent schemes," Dever recommended that such "chain transactions" be included in the laws against lotteries.

He proposed enactment of a law in connection with installment sales which would require sellers to inform purchasers of all charges and interest which would be added to the price.

CHARGES EXPLOITATION

Commenting on his recommendation concerning nurses' registries, the attorney general stated in his report:

"The profession of nursing is being exploited. Due to lack of any supervision, most of the nursing agencies adopted iniquitous methods which injure and hamper persons engaged in the nursing profession."

DICK MERRILL

TOBY WING

Dick Merrill, transatlantic flier, is photoed in a New York night club with Toby Wing, film actress. For months the name of Collette Lyons, Dorchester's film star, has been connected with that of Merrill.

Transatlantic flier Dick Merrill, who has been reported quite chummy with Dorchester's Collette Lyons recently, today was reported to have executed a neat sideslip toward another Hollywood eyeful—Toby Wing.

Merrill, who won his wings a long time ago, and Toby were observed last night at the opening of a New York night spot, all wrapped up in the show and each other.

Last November, he and Miss Lyons were said (by her press agent, it turned out) to have become engaged, but both subsequently denied it.

"It was love at first sight," said the press agent.

"That's a lot of bunk," said Dick.

"Dick and I are only good friends," added Collette with a smile.

Girls Rap Police For 'Bungling'

James J. Bow and Samuel N. Higgins of Back Bay station arrived to examine the premises and take a list of the loot.

Miss Burns denied early today that she had given out the list of missing articles as they appeared in the police records. She insisted she told the police the loot consisted of:

Miss Ragland's fur coat, valued at $500; seven rings, family heirlooms, valued at approximately $250 each; and personal effects valued at approximately $250.

News of the attack on Miss Davis leaked out when her father appeared at headquarters and demanded action, declaring he had reported the incident but the Back Bay police had "done nothing about it."

UNREPORTED

Investigation then revealed the attack had not been reported to the detective bureau and no mention was made of it on the station journal.

A few hours after Dr. Davis complained, [illegible] was picked up on Boylston street, Back Bay. When first questioned by police they said he admitted punching Miss Davis because he "had a bad spell and felt like slugging somebody."

In the police lineup at headquarters today, however, he changed his story and said he planned to snatch the society girl's purse, police said, declaring he was not making enough money to live on. When he found Miss Davis was not carrying a purse he fled, police stated.

Suspect Seized In Store Burglary

A 36-year old South End man was captured at gunpoint early today in a Hampden street, Roxbury, store that he allegedly confessed he looted of $200 of goods two weeks ago.

Patrolman John Keaney became suspicious when he noticed the night light out in the grocery store. He drew his revolver and climbed through an open side window. He captured the man hiding under a counter.

DeMille's Visit Ends, Amateurs Rush Photos

With the cheers of thousands of candid-camera fans still ringing in his ears, Cecil B. DeMille, noted producer-director of Paramount Pictures, was speeding away to the West today, his mind still abuzz with the panorama of his two-day whirlwind visit to Boston.

Following the ultra-lively reception at Back Bay station yesterday, where the smiling and dapper "pioneer of the movies" made a last stand against the clicking shutters of contestants in the Boston Evening American's sensational contest, the fans began to settle down to the job of making prints which may send YOU to Hollywood.

Yes, it might be YOU.

ALL EXPENSES PAID. You don't even have to buy postage stamps to tell the folks back home about your success.

Just send a print—negatives are not eligible—of your best photograph of Mr. DeMille to THE AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR of THE BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER, 5 WINTHROP SQUARE, BOSTON.

AND REMEMBER THIS—THE PRINTS MUST BE IN THE SUNDAY ADVERTISER OFFICE BEFORE MIDNIGHT ON MONDAY, JANUARY 24.

RUNNER-UP PRIZE

As second prize in the DeMille Hollywood competition, to be awarded the runner-up, the following valuable equipment, offered by Sixteen Millimeter Sound Films, Inc., of 78-80 Broadway, is all ready to be presented:

Twelve rolls of 35mm Panchromosa film, or the equivalent in any other size rolls to fit the second place winner's camera; three dozen 8-10 Novabrom paper for press photography and enlarging; two dozen 8x10 Gevaluxe velour paper, for high type portraiture and salon exhibitions; one dozen 5x7 Gevaluxe paper, and three dozen 8-10 Artex projection paper.

OTHER AWARDS

Other awards are:

THIRD PRIZE — One Kodak Junior Six-16 Series II, with instantaneous exposure up to 100th of a second and 11 other important features found in expensive cameras. Here is an ideal prize for the amateur photographer.

Beal's Counsel Opens Battle on Extradition

Mill Organizer, Held For N. C. Killing, Seeks Bail

Attorney George E. Roewer planned to confer today with Attorney-General Paul A. Dever as the initial step in his legal fight to prevent the extradition of Fred Erwin Beal, anti-Red mill organizer, to North Carolina as a fugitive from a nine-year-old murder conviction.

The Boston veteran labor lawyer, who refused to reveal the bases of his plea, said he believed bail would be furnished today for his client's release.

Beal, meanwhile, adopted a policy of silence in the Essex County jail in Lawrence, where he is being held under $5000 bail. Jailmaster Mark Stillings would not allow interviews and the prisoner refused to answer written questions sent him.

An active foe of the Committee for Industrial Organization, Beal faces a 20-year term for the slaying of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt during a textile strike in Gastonia, N. C., in 1929. He and six others were convicted of second degree murder.

Beal jumped bail while waiting appeal of his conviction in the sensational case that attracted international attention.

He denies he was connected with the killing of Police Chief Aderholt.

Beal told the Boston Evening American that he is marked for death if he ever returns to Russia and that he will have no chance for justice if sent South to face authorities there.

"I was one of seven persons convicted," he said. "I was a Northerner. The southern defendants in that case were released on $2500 bail after we appealed. They made my bail $5000.

"I didn't get a fair trial and I believe Governor Hurley will be convinced of it and refuse to turn me over to the Gastonia police."

Governor Refuses Aid, Mother of 4 Must Die

MRS. MARIE PORTER
Faces Electric Chair

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 20 (INS)—Governor Henry Horner, who has been quoted as saying he would not permit a woman to die in the electric chair while he is governor, today denied clemency to Mrs. Marie Porter, sentenced to be electrocuted shortly after midnight tonight.

Mother of four children, Mrs. Porter, if she is executed, will become the first woman ever to die in the electric chair in Illinois. She is 37 years old and weighs 250 pounds.

In denying the pleas of Mrs. Porter and her hired assassin, Angelo Giancola, both sentenced to death for murdering the woman's brother, Governor Horner said:

"I have searched the records in this case, and have been unable to find any circumstances to mitigate the heinous crime.

"The petitioner is a woman who for months planned the murder of her own brother. On account of his affection for her, she was made the beneficiary in the policies of insurance he carried and because she was the beneficiary, she decreed his death and hired the executioners to take his life."

Police Fund $1.30 Over for 17 Years

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Jan. 20—In checking the petty cash as he assumed office, Police Chief John J. A Hearn found $1.30 extra.

"Say," he called to Desk Sergeant Edward J. Kelly, "this fund is $1.30 over any way I can check it."

"That's right," said Kelly. "It was exactly $1.30 over when I went in here as desk sergeant, nearly 17 years ago, and it has been that way ever since."

Have you heard the Chant of the Tobacco Auctioneer?

It's Your Reminder that Independent Tobacco Experts like Ray Oglesby (above) Prefer Luckies 2 to 1...

"For 8 years, at auction after auction in Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky," says Ray Oglesby, "I've seen Lucky Strike buy exactly the same fine grades of tobacco . . . and that's one reason I've smoked Luckies since I've been an auctioneer.

"Luckies suit my taste to a 'T'. And as an auctioneer I've been thankful for Luckies plenty of times because they're so easy on my throat."

Your taste and your throat will tell you why so many experts, like Mr. Oglesby, prefer Luckies . . . Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many—yes, twice as many—exclusive smokers as all the other cigarettes put together!

Unscramble Them!

THE RULES

WHO CAN ENTER? This game is open to all bona fide residents of New England—men, women, boys and girls everywhere—except employes of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser and members of their families.

WHAT TO DO? Every week-day a picture containing the scrambled name of a movie star will be published in the Boston Evening American until 49 have appeared. Unscramble the name on the line provided, or on any piece of paper. Hold all answers until you have the complete set of 49. DO NOT SEND THEM IN SEPARATELY.

WHERE TO SEND? Mail your entry by First Class Mail to: "Movie Stars," Boston American, P. O. Box 866, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Massachusetts. Send a letter with your entry, giving your name and address and telling in 50 words or less who is your favorite movie star and why. Letters will be considered only in the event of ties in naming the stars. Entries must be in the office of the Boston American by midnight, 10 days after the Name No. 49 has appeared.

BASIS OF AWARDS. Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Boston American. Entrants agree that the judges' decisions will be final. Awards will be paid to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved, complete set of unscrambled names. Neither handwriting nor elaborateness will count. In the event of a tie between or among two or more entrants for any of the prizes, the prize or prizes next in order will be combined in a lump sum and then evenly distributed among those tying.

NO ENTRY FEES!
NO "PLAY-OFF" SERIES!
NO LIBRARY RESEARCH!

FIRST PRIZE $2,500.00

576 OTHER CASH AWARDS

At last! Here is a contest which will entertain the whole family. Can you recognize the names of such well-known movie players as Shirley Temple, Alice Faye, Katharine Hepburn, Spencer Tracy, Gary Cooper, Robert Taylor, Marlene Dietrich and others? Would you recognize these popular Hollywood names if their letters were mixed up?

Look at the pictures on this page! The scrambled letters in the pictures, when properly arranged, will spell the names of popular movie stars, who appear in these pictures! Try it! It's simple! It's fun! Write the names in the spaces beneath the pictures.

Each week-day the Boston American will print the name of a movie player, with the name scrambled. Unscramble them! That's all there is to this fascinating game!

There are no strings attached! No entry fees! No "play-off" series. No complicated situations! No library research! It's easy for you to win any of the big 576 cash prizes!

Just think! You have a chance of winning $2,500.00 in cash . . . or any of 575 other cash prizes, ABSOLUTELY FREE!

The remaining names will appear in the Boston American every week-day. See the complete list of prizes on this page!

Knickerbocker Says:

Japan's Warships Rule All Orient

Next Great War Seen Between White And Yellow Races; Spies Everywhere

(Editor's note: The extent to which the imperial navy of Japan controls the entire Orient east of Singapore is graphically described by H. R. Knickerbocker, the noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, in the following article, fourth of a series of twelve. Knickerbocker has just returned to Paris after months spent in covering the Sino-Japanese conflict, and a 12,000-mile trip across Asia and Europe undertaken to gauge the menace to America which lies in "the yellow typhoon and red storm warnings.")

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1938. Reproduction in whole or part prohibited.)

PARIS, Jan. 20—Japan's navy already effectively controls the Orient east of Singapore.

As we sailed out of Shanghai in the French steamer Jean Laborde bound for Kobe, we passed no fewer than 150 Japanese warships and transports lying in a chain 30 miles long from His Imperial Japanese Majesty's ship Idzumo anchored in the heart of Shanghai to a monster aircraft carrier lying sinister in the dim distance off the mouth of the Yangtze.

H. R. Knickerbocker

Looking for the last time at the Idzumo I remembered the jocular amiability of Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa when he received us on board, and how during our interview, as he expressed utmost goodwill toward us all, there returned from its flight and was swung on board one of the formidable fleet of naval war planes which had expressed themselves in quite other terms with machine guns to both America and Britain.

All these warcraft belonged to Admiral Hasegawa. They were merely Japan's third fleet. Their home base in Japan was hardly 200 miles away.

From a military viewpoint, Hong Kong does not count, because the British know they could not hold it.

CAN'T DEFEND SHANGHAI

Japanese sea-power is the reason why the British have not strengthened their army in Shanghai. Back in 1927, when the Chinese were running amok, the British alone had 25,000 troops in the international settlement. Today they have 2500, because at the beginning of this Far Eastern conflict the British made up their minds they could not defend Shanghai in a real war with Japan.

China's lack of sea-power effectively precludes her from ever winning a conclusive victory against Japan, no matter what were to happen on land.

Without sea power, she never could invade or conquer her enemy. It helps to understand this war to remember that in the Sino-Japanese War of 1894, the Chinese had a bigger and better navy, which should have been able to whip the infant Japanese war fleet.

BAN ON PHOTOS

But the old Empress had taken all the money meant for guns and ammunition and spent it on her summer palace.

Today Japan's navy makes all foreigners accept her as the police agent of the Far East. We were immediately warned by our French officers to take no photographs of the Japanese war vessels. Hung in prominent positions throughout the ship were outline maps of Japan, with huge circles drawn around a score of places marked:

"War zones. Forbidden to photograph or use binoculars."

Nevertheless, as we passed down the Whangpoo I used my binoculars to look over the melancholy ruins of what had been a flourishing part of Shanghai—now grim rows of gutted factories, warehouses, homes and schools. The schools, particularly, are a reminder of what the Japanese intend to do to China.

There off at the left rose the chimneys and blackened walls of what had been the German-Chinese University. For some odd reason, the Japanese had shown it to us shortly after they had burned it down, just as they showed us the Municipal Center of Greater Shanghai while it was still burning.

WAR ON LEARNING

As I stood in a rubble of priceless art treasures on the floor of the shattered Shanghai Museum, and later in many minor schools and institutions of learning similarly destroyed, I wondered if there were not some system being followed, whereby any other building may escape by chance, but no school by any chance, where the Japanese army has been in China.

As one Chinese noted for his philosophical essays expressed it to me:

"The Japanese are deliberately wiping out our schools, because they want to turn us into a nation of coolies or literal slaves. Not even the Mongols did that."

Which helps to explain why many Chinese show a hatred of the Japanese which passes common sense, and astounds a westerner accustomed to regard the two races as closely related.

JAPANESE REPLY

Unable at first even to distinguish some Chinese from some Japanese, a new comer to China, is shocked to hear educated Chinese exclaim:

"The Japanese are not human beings! They are not related to us in any way. They are hairy apes from the Malay jungles. They have never done anything but destroy. Their God is war. They have no culture of their own. All they have of civilization has been borrowed from us, and their machines from the west."

To which the Japanese reply:

"You Chinese are degenerate millionfold remnants of a once great race. Yes, we admit you used to be great. You talk of our enslaving you, but you are already enslaved to your war lords, your dirt and sloth.

"We will teach you to be great once again, under Japanese guidance. Without us you would long ago have been a colony of the whites. Together we will drive out the whites and reign over Asia, and incidentally teach you Chinese to take a bath."

General Neill Malcolm, chairman of the "Universities of China Commission," has collected authentic information showing that to November 15, 1937, alone, in the cities of Shanghai, Nanking, Pan-ting-Fu and Nanchang, three universities were completely destroyed and 14 damaged, while 53 high schools and 25 primary schools were destroyed or occupied, with a property loss of $10,000,000. Fifty thousand students have been deprived of their educational opportunity.

STUDENTS MOST BITTER

Since that time, the Japanese occupation of many more cities probably has doubled the destruction of China's schools. This is because the Japanese are concentrating on destruction in China of "anti-Japanese propaganda," and rightly believe the student class is most bitter against them.

So they intend physically to destroy the instruments of modern education which were rapidly changing the Chinese into a nation resolved to preserve its independence and become a power in the world.

As a weapon of national policy, this is just as defensible as the bombing of non-combatants to terrorize the population into submission. But Chinese worshippers of scholarship take it even harder than the killing of their people.

There were no Chinese on our boat but plenty of Japanese. We might as well have been in Japan. The conversation throughout our three-day voyage was guarded.

YELLOWS VS. WHITE WAR

Japanese sat intimately near other passengers. Usually voluble Frenchmen dampened their voices, but confidentially every white man on board, from American airplane salesmen and shipping men to French army officers, talked of only one thing:

"The coming war between the yellow and white races."

Is it really coming?

Lying inside the jetty at Kobe, a row of submarines caught my attention. I felt I had committed an indiscretion even to look at them. "A dangerous thought," I reflected as I began to count them.

Suddenly a Japanese officer in uniform appeared at my side. I stopped counting submarines and began to count my fingers. Hissing politeness, he asked me to come below.

"Oh, Lord," I thought.

"Kind sir," said the little man, to my relief, "I only one speak English here. Newspaper gentleman wants interview you about what you think Japanese army and Chinese war. I translate for you and him. All right?"

Another article in H. R. Knickerbocker's dramatic series on "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings" will appear exclusively in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Gen. Johnson Says:

Final Rites Are Barbarism Relics

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—I attended yesterday the funeral of a great woman. Funerals are relics of barbarism. They seem to me to submit to a public test of fortitude, grief in its most unsupportable form. They are ordeals for bereaved people more grueling than a Sioux sun-dance, in which tribal devotion is tested by a public tearing of the breasts of brave men.

Hugh S. Johnson

They are supposed to honor the departed, but none could be so lavishly beloved save for love so lavishly given, and none could love so lavishly and not shrink from such exposure of anguish.

It would be better if, with the last conscious farewell, the servant could depart in peace with no more ceremony than attends our leaving on a journey. But funerals are both a social and a religious tribal fetich—like the sun dance—and such simplicity will probably never be.

At this funeral an attempt was made to reach this ideal simplicity. It reached close because this great woman, although she was the wife of a luminous national figure, was herself so simple that she kept out of the spotlight that for so long has followed her brilliant husband.

* * *

I never talked with her that some part of the conversation didn't reveal an effort to do something for somebody else who needed it. Yet, so quietly was this done that frequently those who were aided never knew from whence help came. I think that never did the public know.

At the depths of the depression her efforts helped to keep a whole county from hunger. If that ever leaked into a press notice, I never saw it.

But the kind of care that seems to me more impressive than even these silent charities was a watchful eye for all kinds of bearings of the burdens of human bondage on others that most of us take for granted—that this or that young married man didn't seem to be getting ahead as fast in his position as his family situation required; that an old employe who had sought to better himself elsewhere was slipping; that a struggling young musician wasn't getting a chance; that a street vendor wasn't warmly clad.

There just isn't space enough to record the variety of such concerns that absorbed that woman's time and effort.

To make a perfect home, to bring her children up in right principles to right living and, above all, to try to make as happy as possible the lot of all those whose fate touched hers—I know of no life better lived.

* * *

All this brings me back to the hateful subject of funerals. Only those few who were most dear were asked to hers, and, although this included the beloved Eleanor Roosevelt, it also included many of the lowly. All this made for the simplicity of these quiet and beautiful rites, but it also made them ineffably poignant.

I cannot go through a thing like this without a feeling of hot rebellion against the miseries of man.

He didn't ask to be born into this hazard of grief. He didn't invent whatever is in him that so binds him with ties of devotion that, when he looks into an open grave of the best and most beautiful he has known, he can reflect that the worst and meanest are yet permitted to live, and ask what sense of justice or mercy resides in a scheme of things so sorry.

In that sad, small and anguished company today I seemed to read such thoughts in every face I saw.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Washington Merry-Go-Round," by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, sprightly and informative column on the inside activities of political Washington, is now a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. It will also appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser every Sunday.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Don't be at all surprised if the three U. S. cruisers sent to Singapore, for the February opening of the giant British naval base, do not return to the United States.

It has not been definitely decided yet, but they probably will remain in Oriental waters—presumably near Singapore—for some time to come. Also, the 10,000-ton cruiser Louisville, which is accompanying them to Australia, may proceed north to Singapore and remain there.

And this is in line with Roosevelt's Far Eastern strategy, previously disclosed in this column, of closer co-operation with the British. It is one of the most important of all administration policies.

FRENCH NAVAL BASE — Furthermore, it will cause no surprise if another squadron of United States cruisers should visit the new French naval base at Point Saint-Jacques in French Indo-China. This is equipped with large drydocks, and will be one of the most important naval stations in the Far East when completed, which will be soon.

How far in advance Roosevelt envisaged the present Chinese-Japanese crisis can be gathered from his conversations with Edouard Herriot, ex-Premier of France, back in April of 1933.

Herriot had come over to discuss preparations for the London economic conference, but Roosevelt spent part of the time inquiring about French naval plans in the Orient.

One question he asked was how soon Saigon (chief port of Indo-China) could be developed for a large naval unit. Herriot replied that it was not being developed but that Point Saint-Jacques was, and thereupon invited the use of the French naval base by United States warships.

BUZZY DALL—Mrs. Roosevelt has brought back from Seattle a new story about Buzzy, her lively eight-year-old grandson.

Several weeks after Buzzy entered school in Seattle, a young neighbor told his mother:

"There is a new boy in our class. His name is Buzzy Dall. I like him very much, but you know I don't think he is very truthful. Why, he told me he has fed live bears out of his hand and his grandfather is President of the United States."

Note—Accompanying his grandfather, the President, through Yellowstone Park last fall, Buzzy did feed cookies to the bears along the road.

LABOR ROW—Keep an eye on that secret plan of Alexander F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, for peace between the A. F. of L. and the CIO. It offers a real solution of the controversy and you will hear a lot more about it.

Briefly, here is Whitney's proposal:

The A. F. of L. and the CIO would preserve their present independent status, but would join with the Big Four rail brotherhoods in a "Consultative Council" on which each of the three groups would have equal representation. This council would act as a sort of supreme court in deciding questions of jurisdiction and other controversial issues.

The brotherhoods, affiliated with neither AFL nor CIO, would act as the balance wheel between the two. Each would be independent and autonomous in its own sphere, yet united through the bond of the council.

In addition to its practicability, there is another potent factor favoring Whitney's plan. It comes from an independent quarter on good terms with both battle fronts.

TIT FOR TAT—The scramble for the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York is warming up.

The other day the Young Democrats of New York City invited U. S. Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson, the President's choice, to address their annual banquet on February 25. Jackson accepted and the Young Democrats started preparations for a big state political rally.

At once New York State Attorney General John Bennett, long a gubernatorial aspirant, got busy with a rival show. Through friendly old-line Brooklyn leaders, Bennett arranged to have a testimonial dinner given in his honor on the same night Jackson is scheduled to address the Young Democrats.

NOTE—A dark-horse aspirant for the nomination is Adolf Berle, former Roosevelt brain-truster and intimate friend of Rex Tugwell and Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia. No hint of Berle's candidacy has yet been made public, but he is the secret LaGuardia brain trust choice.

E. J. Neil's Body At Methuen

METHUEN, Jan. 20 (INS)—In a flower-draped casket, the body of Edward J. Neil, Jr., Associated Press war correspondent killed in Spain, lay today at the home of his parents.

Among those who accompanied the body from New York were his widow, the former Helen Nolan, and his brother, Dr. Richard E. Neil. After arrival in Boston by train, the body was escorted here by a guard of Massachusetts state troopers.

Interment tomorrow will be in Bellevue cemetery with prayers by Rev. Mario Aronnada of St. Lawrence Church, whose brother was killed in Spain. A funeral mass was held in New York.

Pilot Sights Ship Afire Off Coast

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20—Coast Guard craft were today investigating the report of Capt. J. B. Kuhn, Eastern Airlines pilot, that he had sighted what he believed to be a burning ship off Cape Canaveral as he passed over Titusville on Florida's east coast.

Kuhn said it might have been a brush fire on one of the islands east of Titusville but that it appeared to be on the ocean.

Mustached Hugger Hunted in Peabody

PEABODY, Jan. 20—A middle-aged mustached hugger was sought today following an attack on Miss Marion Newhall, 20, of Fairview avenue.

The hugger first extended his hand as if to shake hands when he stepped up to the girl on Washington street. Instead, he hugged her lustily, pushed her into a snowbank and fled.

Boston Dance Star, Lauds 'Big Apple'

Lincoln Kirstein Sees New Era for American Ballet

American ballet will enter a new era because of the "Big Apple," Lincoln Kirstein, noted dancer, and son of Louis Kirstein of Boston, predicted today.

Tonight, Kirstein, considered the country's leading authority on the ballet and other classic dance forms, will lecture on the history and development of the dance in America at Boston Museum of Modern Art.

Modern trends in the American ballet will be revealed when he makes his first Boston appearance as a dancer at Jordan Hall tomorrow night. Accompanying him will be his Ballet Caravan from New York.

"The 'Big Apple' is creating a new era in the American dance," said Kirstein, "because it is reviving many folk dances which are thoroughly American in origin and at the same time is forcing composers to write new music of the typically American swing variety.

"Perhaps some folks think the 'Big Apple' is bothersome on the dance floor, but we need more of this type of dance. It is making America dance conscious and I'm glad—because Americans are the best natural dancers in the world."

Kirstein envisions an American art based on folk tales like the Mother Goose rhymes, Br'er Rabbit stories and Paul Bunyan adventures. He foresees corps de ballet in every large city of the United States, just as cities now have their own symphony orchestras.

"Fred Astaire and Bill Robinson are the two outstanding dancers of this country due to their re-awakening of public interest in the dance," he stated.

His Ballet Caravan is considered an ideal group for testing new American dance ensembles, critics say. It is being closely watched by movie magnates for new dance styles.

In the company's repertoire are such dances as "Filling Station," "The Show Piece," "Promenade," "Pocahontas," "Harlequin" and "Encounter."

The son of the vice-president of Filene's, Lincoln Kirstein was graduated from Harvard in 1930. In addition to his activity as director of ballets, he has written several books on dancing.

Film Actor Dies After Last Scene

CULVER CITY, Cal., Jan. 20—"Good work, Bob. That's your final scene," Director Clarence Brown of MGM told Robert McWade, 56, veteran character actor, as the latter completed a movie scene.

"Yes," replied McWade, "that's my final scene."

The actor walked three feet, slumped into a chair and dropped dead of a heart attack.

Bishop Burns Funeral To Be Held Here Saturday

Funeral services for the Rt. Rev. Charles Wesley Burns, 63, resident bishop of the New England Methodist Church, will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Copley Church.

Details for the arrangements have not been completed and will not be announced until tomorrow, church officials stated.

The body of Bishop Burns was brought to his Beacon street, Back Bay, home from Portland, Me., where he died on a tour of church duties.

Bishop Burns had charge of [illegible] churches in the New England district and in addition served in an advisory capacity with the Deaconess Hospital, the Morgan Memorial, Boston University, five secondary schools and three homes for the aged and orphans.

He was born in Willowgrove, Pa., and was graduated from Boston University theology school in 1899.

He came to Boston in 1932 to take over the New England territory which extends from Bangor, Me., to New Jersey.

He leaves his wife, two sons, George Burns, assistant editor of the Philadelphia Record, and Charles W. Burns, Jr., of California, and two daughters, the Misses Elizabeth and Barbara Burns of Boston.

MRS. MARY LEAHY

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary E. Leahy, 100, believed to be Boston's oldest woman voter, will be held tomorrow from her home, 522 East Fourth street, South Boston, followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at Gate of Heaven Church.

Mrs. Leahy was born in Galway, Ireland, and came to Boston when a child. She was known as "the grand old lady of South Boston" and celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary on December 5.

She leaves four sons, the Rev. George V. Leahy of Manchester [illegible], N. H., William A., an author, Francis T., a Brookline attorney, and Charles Leahy, retired president of the South Boston Citizens Association.

MISS MARY WILCOX

Funeral services for Miss Mary E. Wilcox, 70, lifelong resident of Chelsea, will be held Saturday with a solemn high mass of requiem from St. Rose's Church, Chelsea.

Miss Wilcox died at Holy Ghost Hospital after an illness of several weeks. Her home was at 786 Broadway, Chelsea. For many years she had been active in the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

GEORGE W. GRANT

Funeral services for George W. Grant, retired vice-president of the Old Colony Trust Company, will be held Saturday at First Unitarian Church, Salem.

He died suddenly at his home in Salem. He was born in Boston and began a long banking career soon after graduation when he entered the employ of the Exchange Bank in Salem. Later he joined the Old Colony Trust Company and served as vice-president from 1913 until his retirement in 1928.

DR. EDWARD T. MANIX

Dr. Edward T. Manix, 62, well known Lynn physician, died today at his Lewis street residence after a short illness. He had been suffering from heart disease.

Born in Exeter, N. H., Dr. Manix was a graduate of the Harvard Medical School and a member of the staffs of the Lynn and Union Hospitals. He was a member of the Harvard and Tedesco Clubs.

Three sisters survive. The physician's wife died several years ago.

Girl Missionary Gets O.K. for Stay in U. S.

Neglected Visa, Must Return to Canada During Vacation

Her plans for a career as a South Sea Island missionary were nearly ruined in their first stage for Anita Deveraux, 22-year-old Trinity Bay, Newfoundland girl, who arrived here today aboard the Furness liner Nova Scotia.

Due to some misunderstanding the girl had neglected to provide herself with a visa required by immigration authorities for anyone intending to remain in the United States for a period of time greater than that allowed ordinary visitors.

Miss Deveraux had planned to take a 2½-year training course at the convent of the Missionary Sisters of the Society of Mary in Bedford.

For a time it was feared that the young Canadian girl would have to be detained and returned to her home. But, it was discovered by stretching a point, the girl can be admitted for a year and during the vacation period at the convent she can return to Newfoundland and secure the visa.

The Nova Scotia, from Liverpool, St. John's, N. F., and Halifax, N. S., had a total passenger list of 25.

Others landing here were Lady Outerbridge and her son Edward, members of a distinguished St. John's family, who were accompanied by their chauffeur; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard A. Oliver of St. John's, who are en route to New York city where they will spend their honeymoon, and three cadet officers from Liverpool, replacements for other Furness ships here and in New York.

Convention Set For Frigidaire

All roads will lead to the Hotel Statler next Friday and Saturday when 2800 members of the national sales organization of the Frigidaire appliances in the New England district gather for their convention. J. S. Pfeil, district manager of the Frigidaire division of General Motors Sales Corporation, will preside.

Twenty executives from Frigidaire headquarters in Dayton, Ohio, will participate. Dramatic skits, sound movies, chart and slide presentations and explanatory talks will be presented.

A companion product of the famous Frigidaire for 1938 is the electric range, and according to Mr. Pfeil the new appliance promises to increase activity in the appliance field.

Gives Corn to Aid Starving Wildfowl

Thousands of starving wild ducks and other game in the Squantum marshes were given relief today when Henry M. Faxon, Quincy millionaire retired banker, donated 1100 pounds of corn to feed them.

More than 10,000 wild fowl are said by conservation department officials to be near death as a result of the cold spell, which has prevented them from obtaining food.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin also donated $10 to purchase corn for the fowl and other sportsmen are following suit.

Annapolis Film At the Olympia

"Navy Blue and Gold," Annapolis football romance thriller featuring James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, Robert Young and Florence Rice, will be the Washington Street Olympia Theater feature, starting Saturday and continuing through Tuesday. It is easily the best of its kind.

Partnered with it is "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry," exciting race track yarn with Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and Sophie Tucker. Young Rooney, as usual, runs away with the acting honors.

Attempt to Float Grounded Trawler

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 20 (AP)—Coast guardsmen and the crew of the Sabastian C. tried today to float the 66-ton Gloucester trawler which went hard aground on the Carolina coast near the False Cape coast guard station.

The trawler is owned by Mamie Cianciolo of Gloucester. William McDonald, the master, and nine members of the crew waded ashore yesterday at low tide and spent the night at coast guard stations.

Producer Given Pig as Comedy Opens Run

'Yes, My Darling Daughter' Comes Here Monday

Theater people have a strange sense of humor, if the gifts they send each other may be taken as an indication. For instance, at a meeting of the Critic's Circle, the New York organization of dramatic reviewers, the members were surprised to receive a nicely crated present of a live snake. The donor remained anonymous. Fortunately the snake was harmless.

At some openings, instead of sending the actors telegrams, friends have been known to send a quarter instead, feeling that will go further in providing coffee and buns if the play doesn't last.

When Alfred de Liagre, Jr., a most fastidious gentleman who is the producer of "Yes, My Darling Daughter," the comedy hit coming to the Plymouth Theater here on Monday, was about to open his play in New York, he received a large box which thrilled him before he opened it.

It was packed in fancy paper and fancier ribbons, obviously a gift. He opened it to the sound of squeals, not his own, but those of a newly born pig which was inside the box. The porcine infant was dolled with a big red bow and looked as bewildered as Mr. de Liagre. When removed from its container, a note was found under its pinkish bottom, saying: "Hope the show continues to be a big success." Since the play lasted a year in New York, the donor might have been a prophet.

Mr. de Liagre took the pig to his garage near fashionable Sutton Place, hoping to board it there at least for the night. But the proprietor threw up his hands in horror and remonstrated:

"I'd do anything for you, Mr. de Liagre, but I can't keep a pig here. The gas fumes would make it sick. It might frighten some of the ladies."

The bewildered producer was forced to take the animal home with him.

They're Tops in Acting

Boston's own Bette Davis and Paul Muni, Academy Award winners, acquire new honors in "Bordertown," opening at the Hub tomorrow. Paul and Bette are shown above in a scene from the film.

Muni, Davis Top Stars at Hub

Academy award winners Paul Muni and Bette Davis are co-starred in "Bordertown," the screen attraction at the Hub Theater, beginning tomorrow.

The picture, suggested by Carroll Graham's best-selling novel, is set for the most part in a resort town on the American border in a wild and lawless community which is the rendezvous of rogues, gamblers, outcasts and adventurers, as well as the trysting place of American millionaires.

Stage Honors To Boston Girl

Betty Field, who plays the daffy and amusing Nora in "If I Were You," now playing a one-week engagement at the Wilbur Theater, is a 20-year-old Boston girl, a direct descendant of John and Priscilla Alden. She is the grandniece of Cyrus W. Field.

Most of Miss Field's stage career has been spent with George Abbott productions. She first won public notice when she appeared in "Three Men on a Horse" for Mr. Abbott and from this hilarious comedy he selected her to play the role of Susie, the nitwit waitress in "Boy Meets Girl."

Loew's Taking No Chances

Believe it or not, officials of Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters insist that, beginning tomorrow and for the next ten days these properties are covered with hurricane insurance by Holt, Dalton and Church, of Broad street.

Need you be reminded that Samuel Goldwyn's colossal production, "The Hurricane," starring, first, the weather, and then Dorothy Lamour, Jon Hall and Mary Astor, opens a week's engagement at popular prices at the twin houses beginning tomorrow?

"The Hurricane" is an experience that should not be missed.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20—The rising generation may be sophisticated in many things, but its taste in movies remains the same. Westerns and serials rate tops among our younger folk.

FLASH: Latest bulletin from the Warner front puts Bette Davis in "Fashions of 1938," "All Rights Reserved," with Errol Flynn as her co-star. What a lot of casting changes, this movie since it was originally bought for Kay Francis.

Chatter in Hollywood: Dick Powell's newly adopted son, Norman, will soon have a little brother or sister, for according to an excellent source the Dick Powells are expecting a visit from the stork. That means Joan Blondell will be off the screen temporarily, but I know Joan doesn't care because both she and Dick have wanted a baby to grow up with little Norman who is now three. There have been lots of rumors that the Powells would welcome a little stranger, but heretofore they have been merely lame rumors, fabrications. This time it is true.

CHAPTER 16

First---Read Story of What Has Gone Before...

TYPICAL of the best in Boston is the family of ex-Police Sergeant Bernard F. Kelly, better known as Barney. And loveliest of the four younger Kellys is Sheila, a temporary stenographer at the State House.

Typical, too, of the best in Boston political life is young Attorney Gerald "Jerry" O'Donovan, of Roxbury, former B. C. All American tackle, and Sheila's devoted suitor.

All's well in the Kelly home on Ninth street, South Boston, until Sheila, trying to save her light headed 16 year-old sister, Patsy, from the consequences of a "pickup date," meets Bradford Cabot Talton, of Beacon street and Harvard, "Brad" Talton to his club fellows and adoring debs of Boston's Social Register.

Brad becomes infatuated with Sheila at first sight and Jerry, by putting his political obligations ahead of his engagements with Sheila, plays into his rival's hands.

A sinister factor enters the situation when Big Gus Mornick, king of the Boston rackets, learns Sheila has typed a secret police racketeering report.

Jerry saves her from entrapment by Greefy Koopman, a marijuana-crazed Mornick killer. But Sheila all but puts herself into Mornick's power when she hurries from a party at the Dover home of Brad's wealthy married sister, Mrs. Trudy Wendell, to the racketeer's stronghold.

Her purpose is to keep Mornick, who poses as a "sportsman," from adding her brother Mickey to his stable of crooked fighters. She succeeds in this, but has difficulty in evading Mornick's clumsy advances. A timely sentimental song crooned over the radio changes the racketeer's purpose, and she escapes. Strangely, she recognizes the voice of the crooner as that of her missing brother-in-law, Vince (Vincent) Barton, of Jamaica Plain, whose gambling proclivities have caused a temporary rift in his domestic affairs.

Brad, driving Sheila on her mission of rescue, is arrested for speeding. He is in danger of a jail sentence when police learn his operator's license has been revoked and that he has been drinking. To save Sheila from appearing in court, Jerry goes to his aid.

Meanwhile, Sheila, poring over some old tax records for the State, finds that Vince's father, Luther Barton, was once owner of valuable property at Kenmore square on Commonwealth avenue. This is news to her sister, Delphine, who has come home to live until Vince comes to his senses.

Timmy, Del's small son, protests when he thinks his father is being "scolded." The family scene is interrupted by Mickey, who reveals he is about to go on a "date" with Jane Prentiss, socialite debutante he has met through Sheila and Brad. Jane and Mickey drive away in the former's car, and visit a public dance hall. Later Jane induces Mickey to drive to Castle Island, where they park. Two men interrupt them, flashing a badge. As Mickey battles them, Jane starts the car, hoping to escape publicity. Mickey leaps for the running board as the car gets underway.

"DID you have to fight her off?" asks Sheila, as Mickey shows knuckles [illegible] date with Jane.

THE car had not yet gathered speed, and Mickey's first aim was [illegible]. Clinging to the board he wrenched the right-hand door open, jerked the key out of the ignition lock, jammed on the parking brake.

"Now run out on me, phony," he ground through tight-clenched teeth.

Then he was running back toward the two men. But they'd had enough. The smaller one had already vanished. The burly man with the badge hurled an oath as Mickey approached, then turned and fled.

Mickey walked back to the car.

"[illegible] had [illegible]" said Mickey.

"Did she say anything about me?"

"Yeh," said Mickey. "She said she was gonna sue you for heart balm if you don't lay off Talton."

"Did she really say anything?"

Mickey gulped down a final spoon of oatmeal.

"Not a word except you were lucky to [illegible] a good-looking brother."

"Mickey, do you like her?"

Mickey wiped his lips, pushed back his chair, arose.

"Huh? Sure. She's a jewel among women. Five-and-ten Weeres [illegible] hat."

But Sheila, thinking it over on her way to the State House, decided Mickey didn't mean that. Usually Mickey liked to talk about the girls he'd been out with—what they said, how they acted, drawing sly morals from their conduct for the benefit of his sisters. Jane evidently had made some kind of a special impression on him.

On the [illegible] Jerry [illegible] called her. His voice was business-like, impersonal.

[illegible] sight of him [illegible] was enough to send a [illegible] through her and [illegible] appreciative remembrance of Jerry. He'd manhandled Greefy so quickly and efficiently that night on the [illegible] That was once he'd [illegible] even though [illegible]

The memory of that occasion was [illegible] with her as she stepped [illegible] elevator and Barrister's [illegible] gave Jerry's floor number [illegible] Elevator Operator Helen Woods.

* * *

SHE'D intended to be a little cool and distant, but, with the recollection of that night, it wasn't easy. It never was easy, somehow, when she was with Jerry, meeting his eyes, and feeling the steadfastness and strength that went out from him. Like something warm and enveloping for her alone.

He was waiting in the outer office, hat in hand, overcoat over arm.

"This may take a little while," he said [illegible], business-like. "It occurred to me you might want your lunch. If you don't mind eating with me."

"Of course not," said Sheila. "I was hoping you would. I'm hungry."

She was really glad. She'd never wanted to lose Jerry's friendship. Only he had to understand he couldn't treat her that way—break dates one minute, act like a caveman the next. Nor get so furious when some other man was nice to her. Especially when the other man was Brad.

And, despite the fact that Brad was miles away just then lunching with Whit at McBride's in Harvard square, he dominated their brief hour together at Warmuth's restaurant on Devonshire street.

* * *

JERRY explained the situation without emotion in dry, legal language.

"If it were simply a case of driving under the influence of liquor," he said, "I'm sure I could get him off with a fine. But the fact that his license had been revoked complicates it. Particularly if Registrar Frank Goodwin makes an issue of that."

"But why should he?"

"Well," said Jerry, "Goodwin watches these cases, and he's got a special prejudice against persistent offenders. And, of course, Talton wouldn't have had his license revoked if he hadn't made more than one [illegible] in the traffic laws."

Sheila asked what she could do.

"My main idea," said Jerry, "is to keep you from having [illegible] Talton [illegible] There'd be [illegible] and—it might [illegible] your job."

It was the first time Sheila had considered it from that angle.

"Did you tell Brad that?"

"Yes," said Jerry.

"And he's still willing for me to be a witness?"

"Well, he doesn't want to go to jail."

Sheila had a sense of [illegible] She'd have testified for Brad under any circumstances but [illegible] she wished he'd told Jerry he wouldn't permit [illegible] She knew Jerry thought less of Brad for it. She realized [illegible]

"But I don't see how you can stop it," she said.

"There's one way. I thought I might arrange for Talton to talk to Goodwin himself [illegible] It would be better than [illegible] You [illegible] of course—that you asked Brad to hurry and that he seemed [illegible] at the time. It might help [illegible] it won't hurt to try. [illegible] you can get away from your job [illegible] try to arrange it about this time [illegible] might have to drag [illegible] lunch hour."

Sheila said she would. No matter how she felt about Brad's willingness to call her as a witness she didn't want him to go to jail.

* * *

"YOU'RE awfully good to do all this, Jerry," she said. "Right at this time too, when you're so busy with the election."

"It's nothing," he answered, gazing at her across the table, his eyes hungry with longing. "I'd do a lot more than that for you, Sheila. Anything."

"Anything but keep engagements when you make them?" A smile went with it, but Jerry didn't laugh.

"Anything," he said, "that I can do. But, as I told you, there are times when I'll have to break dates. Sheila"—his voice was appealing—"you understand, don't you? It's not that I'm jealous. It's just that I've got to know I can depend on you."

"And," said she softly, "don't you suppose I like to know I can depend on you, too?"

"You can," said Jerry, "when it's anything important. You'll find it out."

As an afterthought, while Jerry lingered over his cigar and Sheila over her nut sundae, she told him about Del, and the mysterious tax entry.

"That's interesting," he said. "I'd like to help Del. I've some business in City Hall this afternoon, and I'll look into it. But tell her not to build any air castles on that property. The chances are it was just some kind of wash sale. Or that Barton's father disposed of the property long ago."

Then it was time for Sheila to go back to work, for Jerry to go to a campaign conference. So they parted as they had met—friends, but with the dark shadow of a quarrel still between. A breach that would have to heal, an issue that would have to be settled. Before they got back to their old basis of understanding—if they ever did.

Sheila wished the Brad business were over. And still, she [illegible] Father [illegible] of [illegible]

With the girl reporter of the Boston American on Brad's trail, it looks as though Jerry's plans to spare Sheila may go awry. Because what happens to a Brad Talton is news. New, dramatic developments enmesh the destinies of Brad and Sheila in tomorrow's chapter of this unique serial romance, appearing daily in all editions of the Evening American.

While some old Boston and Beacon Hill names are applied to purely fictitious characters in this story, they refer to no actual persons.

McCarthy Now City Treasurer

James J. McCarthy of Brighton, close friend of Mayor Tobin, today was to be sworn in as city treasurer of Boston following his appointment to the $1[illegible] a year [illegible] by Tobin.

He succeeds John H. Dorsey, city treasurer under former Mayor Mansfield, who has been serious[ly ill] for two months.

Mayor Tobin appointed Samuel R. Goodwin of the Back Bay to the $5000 a year post of superintendent of markets.

McCarthy was Tobin's campaign manager during the last mayoral contest.

U. S. Pays 10 Cents In Girl Death Claim

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (INS)—For the death of his daughter who had worked just one day in the last year, a mid-western father was paid a claim of 10 cents under the Social Security Act, a report of the Social Security Board has revealed.

The girl worked on New Year's Day of 1937, then became ill, and died. Under the old age provision of the act—one per cent of her pay for the day had been deducted from her salary and paid to the government and a like amount had been contributed by her employer.

Call McDonough To Jobs Hearing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—John J. McDonough, WPA administrator for Massachusetts, and Arthur G. Rotch, former Boston relief official, today were summoned to appear before the Senate unemployment committee in its inquiry into immediate relief needs in industrial districts.

The committee also planned to question Colby M. Chester, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, regarding rumors that business had been lax in absorbing unemployment.

Harvard Co-Ed Plan Is 'Laugh'

At Least Radcliffe Gives It Just That

Harvard may be Harvard, as far as Rad[cliffe] [illegible]

[illegible] Harvard [illegible] on [illegible]

Jackson College girls who recently declared they wanted hereafter to be known as "Tufts co-eds," inspired the idea. The Crimson editor sent a reporter to get a note of loyalty from Radcliffe girls.

Instead they got a laugh.

"Harvard co-eds?" No sir, was Radcliffe's answer.

So not to "lose face" the Crimson printed a story quoting fictitious Radcliffe girls as saying nothing could be finer than to be a "Harvard co-ed."

"What else could we do?" said the editor when the fake was exposed. "We couldn't disappoint our readers."

Error on Number For Prison Writer

ATLANTA, Jan. 20—Wrong numbers are also given federal penitentiary inmates [illegible] it seems. A convict wrote an article on "Christmas" for the December issue of "Good Words," Atlanta prison magazine. It was given the usual numerical by-line. Now the editor has announced:

"We are sorry we erringly gave the wrong number as the writer ... It should have been No. 48071."

Wins New Trial as Juror 'Forgets All'

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20—George Pedosky, 48, charged with killing a neighbor, won a new trial today because a jury foreman sustained a lapse of memory.

The foreman, Samuel Carlow, 39, retired with a jury to decide Pedosky's fate and collapsed with a heart attack. Later it was found he could not remember being a juror.

Among the Iron Men present were D. Orard Smith, Ed Kevorkian, Thurston Towle, Paul Hodge, Charles Considine, Dave Mishel and Eddie Lawrence.

Rose Bowl squad members were William N. Ormsby, Dr. Joshua Weiss, Spike Staff, Mark Farnum, Marty Dennison, Jack Booth and Buzz Andrews.

Firemen Blush; Contest Is 'Real'

ROCKPORT, Jan. 20—Four of Rockport's firemen were still blushing today from the dilemma they found themselves in when a real fire alarm sounded while they engaged in a hose-coupling contest in Town Hall before 200 spectators.

As part of the firemen's ball feature, they were supposed to leap from bed, don clothes and couple a hose line to a hydrant. The genuine alarm forced them to cover their underwear hurriedly while the 200 watched. The fire was a small one, subdued in 45 minutes.

Lion Kills Noted Circus Performer

UJPETRE, Hungary, Jan. 19.—Before a terrified crowd, Edward Schneller, 25, of a famous circus family was mauled to death in a lion's cage at a performance in an inn courtyard here.

Spectators raced home for their guns and returned to shoot all the animals. The Schneller family has been touring Hungary with circuses for 100 years. A brother, Charles Jr., is an American acrobat.

VIRGINIA ROBERTS, 14, his sister.

Injured were Claire, 13, and Arthur Boulanger, 11, sister and brother of Edmund; Mary McKenna, 13, and Frank Degnan, 2[illegible], of Waterbury, whom police said drove the car, and Miss Esther Bicare, also 27, Naugatuck. The names of Degnan and Miss Boulanger are on the danger list.

Love Blamed In Abduction

Father and Girl, 16, Are Held in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (INS) — When Ronald Morris, 23, was brought into court for the abduction of a 16-year-old school girl he declared:

"I love her so madly, it was the only honorable thing to do!"

He had abandoned his wife, Ethel, and their four-year-old son, Robert, last Sunday, to vanish with Constance [illegible]. The note he left for his wife said:

"We're going to buy a new car and live in Mexico. If we are found we will die together."

Police located them in a Harlem rooming house.

GIRL About TOWN

—By MARJORIE McBRIDE—

It occurs to Arthur Roome, conductor of Bermuda cruises, that between dancing and strolling with the ladies he walks half way to his destination every trip. It's just an idea. He never actually measured the distance, and, anyway, he enjoys it every step of the way.

Marjorie McBride

Mr. Roome has many more serious reflections to offer on people who take those southern cruises. As a cruise director for the Eastern Steamship Company, he has been observing them for six years. In spite of the popular conception of Bostonians as aloof and not too ready to warm up to casual acquaintances, he finds they relax more on cruises than other Americans, particularly New Yorkers who often retire within themselves and give the impression that they are just along for the boat ride.

It takes a Bostonian to let down the barriers the first day out and strike up one of those swift boatdeck friendships. Many of these friendships become permanent. People who are together on a trip frequently hold reunions when they get back to town.

THIS Is LIFE

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

This time it is Representative Charles W. O[illegible] of As[illegible] and who [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] whipping posts [illegible] and stocks [illegible]

Robert E. Rogers

[illegible]

It is obvious that we are getting to the point where drunken driving is so common [illegible] that anything which would [illegible] to keep intoxicated drivers off the road would [illegible] Representative O[illegible]

[illegible]

Few Punishments Are Really Cruel

Some punishments laid down by [illegible] of today are queer and [illegible] enough [illegible] they are [illegible]. But to [illegible] whipping post and stocks [illegible] nothing of the ducking stool [illegible] obviously unconstitutional [illegible]

Such proposals have one [illegible] in common [illegible] proponents say are not [illegible] common but seem [illegible] stamp out [illegible] ordinary [illegible] of the law.

That is the [illegible] makes Attorney [illegible] Dever demand [illegible] since the [illegible] do not seem to be sufficient. [illegible] proposals ignore the fact that if the present laws were [illegible] enforced, or if they were not whittled down to virtual [illegible] because of mistaken pity for the wrongdoer, it is perfectly possible that they would serve without extraneous torture and brutality.

The secret, I take it, of good law enforcement in these cases is merely to remove the wrongdoers, whether intentional [illegible] or not, from circulation. A man in prison cannot do much harm to society and it is the capacity for harm inherent in misdemeanors or crimes which is or should be aimed at.

I do not believe that it does much good to take away the driving licenses of those who, under the in-

Prison Terms Would End Drunken Driving

[illegible]

If sentences for convictions in [illegible] were given according to the letter of the law [illegible] were [illegible] to shorten [illegible] sentence. If a convicted man knew that he must serve his term without redress from mollycoddle ameliorations under the parole law or from undercover political influence, I suspect that a few months of such adherence to the letter of the law, PROPERLY PUBLICISED, would do the trick.

If every morning we all were to read that a long list of drunken drivers had been sent to prison for stiff terms without redress, I believe that there would be no need of whipping posts or stocks or ducking stools. At the best these are only second best; really they are counsels of despair.

Judges with some intestinal fortitude are needed—and indicated.

Sales Tax Would Hit Poor, Says Bloomfield

Tells Upstate Group Plan Is Cruel and Distorted Theory

NORTHAMPTON, Jan. 20 (AP).—Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the retail trade board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, said today the proposed sales tax for Massachusetts offered no [illegible] to the problem of [illegible] government [illegible] expenses [illegible] cannot be justified on any grounds of sound taxation."

[illegible] "that taxes shall be based on ability to pay."

"The sales tax falls heaviest on the poor and on those of small incomes," he continued. "It reverses the principal of ability to pay."

DISTORTED THEORY

"Proponents of the measure say this is desirable in order to make the masses tax conscious," the speaker declared.

What a cruel way of pointing out the need for reduction of governmental waste and extravagance. What a distorted theory of taxation.

"As if the people were not already suffering from hundreds of hidden taxes which they now have to bear in their cost of living, in the rents they pay, in all that goes to make up the family budget.

JUST ONE MORE TAX

"The sales tax," he concluded, "will not remove other taxes. It is just one more tax which cannot be justified on any grounds of sound taxation, expediency or experience except as a source of new revenue.

Offspring of Mighty Political Enemies Attend Same Parties

JACK KENNEDY

The [illegible] and the Morgans, the [illegible] and Kennedys may be famous for [illegible] in the worlds of business and politics, but out at Harvard they're just buddies.

That is, their sons are buddies at least.

Topping the list of Roosevelts is John, youngest son of the President, and a senior this year. Of the Franklin Delano Roosevelts, John is the only representative.

ATTEND SAME PARTIES

The other branch of the family, the Teddy Roosevelt Roosevelts, has four members, including Kermit, Jr., Quentin Archibald and Joseph, a distant cousin of John.

Although the two families have long been political foes, the feeling does not carry on among the boys themselves. They attend many of the same classes, often eat together and go frequently on the same parties.

Representing the New Deal, besides John, is Joseph Kennedy, Jr., son of the new British ambassador, and his younger brother Jack. Joe is a senior and Jack a sophomore.

FRIENDLY DEBATES

The boys often [illegible] in friendly debates, and it is reported as [illegible] defend the policies of their parents. But the debate rarely go beyond the point of academic discussion.

Extremely active in undergraduate activities also is Leverett Saltonstall, Jr., who because of his undergraduate journalistic ventures comes into close contact constantly with many of the sons of men opposed to his father politically.

Representing the Democratic forces, although he's still only a freshman and lives in W[illegible] in the Harvard Yard, is Hubert Earle, son of Governor Earle of Pennsylvania.

Although he's kept pretty much to his regular college work, young Hubert has already shown a great deal of interest in undergraduate political activity—and is expected to be one of the "forces" in his class in future years.

Not all the sons of the great at Harvard are representatives of political groups. Among noted authors sons are Nathaniel Benchley, son of Robert Benchley, George Sylvester Viereck, Jr., son of the noted novelist, and W[illegible] Lewis, son of Sinclair Lewis.

Lectures Feature Busy Day For Fashionables

By BETTY ALDEN

"AM I GLAD I didn't wear my beaver coat!" —Mrs. Robert Stevenson exclaimed as she came out of the Hotel Homerset ballroom yesterday morning after hearing a lecture on the cruelties of beaver trapping by Grey Owl, Canadian Indian naturalist . . .

She had worn her mink coat . . . and the lecturer . . . guest artist at Mrs. William Dana Orcutt's fourth Morning of Diversion this season . . . did not discuss mink trapping practices . . .

CYNTHIA FORBES

As if forewarned that their sympathies would be aroused toward the little dam builders, who work so hard that people use them as a simile for enterprise, most all the fashionable subscribers were warmly wrapped in mink or Persian lamb . . . and there were only two or three in beaver coats . . .

Grey Owl, who is officially known as "Protector of Wild Life in the Canadian Forests" . . . is famous for his books and stories about animals, and has just returned from a successful writing and lecture tour of the British Isles . . .

He illustrated his discussion of home life behind Canadian beaver dams with colored moving pictures . . .

Following the lecture, Grey Owl, who was dressed in full regalia . . . buckskin suit feathered headdress and long braided hair . . . answered questions from the audience . . . [illegible] when requested to "please make a noise [illegible] something" . . . explaining that everything [illegible] are but the well filled ballroom of a Back Bay [illegible] the appropriate place for war whoops . . .

MRS. JOHN GARDNER COOLIDGE, 2d, was one of the few [illegible] and hers was just a slight touch [illegible] cuffs of a black coat . . .

Mrs. Henry Howes was accompanied [illegible] . . . and Betsy H[illegible] . . .

Mrs. Robert Treat Paine was [illegible] wrapped in caracul with a [illegible] over her shoulders [illegible] West . . . and Mrs. Arthur Pearson was another in black furs . . .

The publishers who print his books call Grey Owl the modern Hiawatha, because of his knowledge of all the creatures of the forest and his ability to tell interesting stories to children . . .

At least one member of yesterday's audience was willing to agree that Gray Owl IS a modern Hiawatha . . . and even more exciting than the story book character . . . Mrs. Lawrence B[illegible] [illegible] to stay home from school in order to attend the lecture . . . and all during the talk he sat on the edge of his seat and leaned forward his eyes glistening with excitement [illegible] to miss a word of the discourse of this [illegible] as if he might have stepped out of the pages of a Wild West magazine . . .

Lecture on Greece at Statler

MRS. LIVINGSTON DAVIS entertained Mrs. Butler Ames with a description of her recent trip as they lunched together in the Balinese Room . . . and, like many other socialites, balanced their diet of lectures for the day by going over to the Statler in the afternoon to attend Byron MacDonald's illustrated lecture on Greece and the Dalmatian peninsula . . .

There Mrs. Frank G. Allen and other members of the ladies [illegible] of the Boston Lying In Hospital, who sponsored the affair greeted the lecture-goers at the door . . . and a bevy of attractive flower girls sold fragrant gardenias and camellias to add a festive touch to M[illegible] costume . . .

Nancy Peabody and Helen Claflin did a rushing business with their flowers . . . and Mrs. Frederick Church, Jr., Polly Morrill and Catherine Little also carried trays heaped with colorful blooms . . .

Pictures of the Vale of Tempe, the Temple of Jupiter, and hundreds of other spots so familiar to students of classic literature and Hellenic history, delighted handsome Professor Samuel Eliot Jr., of Smith College . . . who was one of the many, many men in the audience . . .

Thrilled With Pictures

IF ALL THE TRIPS to Greece, planned so spontaneously by the interested spectators as they talked it over on the way home, eventually materialize the little peninsula will be over run with Bostonians next summer . . . Mrs. Horace Morison and Mrs. Wilbur S. Grant thought it would be simply wonderful to go right away . . . Carolyn Clark of Hingham was thrilled with the pictures . . . especially since the girl sitting with her had been on a cruise conducted by the speaker a few years ago . . .

Talbot Baker has also been to Greece and found the pictures full of interest and beauty . . . Mrs. Baker was with him yesterday and other prominent young people present included Cynthia Forbes, Mrs. Robert Emmons, Jr., Iona and Rosemary Shaw, Forbes Amory, Betty Dumaine in a sumptuous suit trimmed with cross fox all down the front, Mrs. B. Devereux Barker, Jr., Mrs. Marc Peter, Jr., and Constance Learned . . .

Dining at Mr. Saltonstall's festive board will be his sister, Mrs. Saltonstall Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Metcalf, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hillyer, Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. MacVeagh, Mrs. Chatfield Whitman, Victor Martin and Miss Aimee Lamb.

Tea for Two of Boston Skating Club's Fairest

JANE ELLIS GRETCHEN MERRILL

FAMOUS ST. MORITZ with its tea tables set out on the ice has nothing on Boston. On Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, when members of the Boston Skating Club practice at the Arena, the skaters take time out for tea while workers are resurfacing the rink. The photo shows Jane Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ellis of Boston, and Gretchen Merrill, well known Boston skating prodigy, enjoying a refreshing spot of tiffin.

WELCOMED BACK

[illegible] chose black crepe outlined with gold kidskin for her debut frock.

It was just the chilly day for luxurious [illegible] Mrs. Joseph A. [illegible] Mrs. Henry Fitzpatrick of Bel[illegible] an crepe with a [illegible] white Marion McCarthy, her knife pleated pastel wool very smart, remained faithful to her secretarial duties by checking lists [illegible]

BLACK CREPE COSTUME

Mrs. Clement Dore's green plaid wool was chic with matching hat banded in brown while Mrs. William J. Blake glittered in black crepe heavily laden with smart gold accessories. Mrs. C. J. E. Kickham chose pearls to offset her black crepe costume.

A valuable addition to the committee is Mrs. Edmund J. Butler of Cambridge, whose pale green wool was effective with her gray coiffure while Mrs. Charle Hamilton chose a cozy frock of blue tweed to wear to yesterday's tea. Mrs. Stephen Higgins' black had refreshing touches of white. Mrs. Vincent Green chose an ascot of many shades to offset her dark ensemble. Mrs. John McArdle, mother of the day's hostess, chose a crisp frock of black and white print for her role of assistant hostess.

Also taking part in the production are Mary Menott, R[illegible] M[illegible]gan, Helen McCarthy and Margaret McSweeney.

Catholic Courts To See Film

As a special tribute to Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., narrator of the film, "Monastery," the Catholic Daughters of America will sponsor a special showing of the cinema this evening at nine o'clock at the Fine Arts Theater.

Large blocks of tickets have been purchased by various courts, many of whom are holding dinner parties before the showing. Katharyn Madden, state treasurer, handled reservations for the performance, while state regent of the group, Mrs. James H. Murray, will be on hand to greet many guests.

Among those who will entertain large parties of guests at the showing are Mrs. Albert Donnelly, Mrs. Thomas G. Murphy and Mary Healey.

Society Notes

MRS. GAMALIEL BRADFORD and Mrs. William Pitt Fessenden will be among the pourers at the opening of an exhibition of water color paintings by Elizabeth H. T. Huntington. A private view and tea will be held on Monday, January 24, at the galleries of the Guild of Boston Artists, 62 Newbury street, where the exhibit will be open to public view until February 6. Other tea pourers at the opening will be Miss Clara Thayer, Mrs. Paul Garland, Mrs. Wilbur Willing and Mrs. Marita Burdett.

Watertown Girl Is Bridesmaid

Mary Thomas of Watertown, daughter of Mrs. William Thomas, has just returned from Riverside, Ct., where she served as bridesmaid at the wedding of one of her Regis College classmates, Mary Rose Lynch, to Dr. Paul Jarrett, of Stanford, Ct., on January 11 in St. Catherine's Church in Riverside.

Exposition Will Open On February 18 Of Next Week

Special to Boston Evening American.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20.—With [illegible] months to go before [illegible] opens its gates on February 18 [illegible] building [illegible] of the Golden Gate International Exposition is [illegible] per cent complete, William P. Day, exposition vice president and director of works announced today. Day said:

"If there was not a single building on Treasure Island today I would figure our job was 50 per cent finished.

"The major part of the exposition building program concerned building of the island itself and the installation of utilities.

"By April 15 of this year, all utilities will have been provided for. All phases of the building program are ahead of schedule."

[illegible] two $[illegible] permanent [illegible] and exhibitors could [illegible] into them tomorrow," Day [illegible] while the $800,000 administration building the only other permanent structure being erected on the [illegible] is virtually completed.

[illegible] Cutler, exposition president, stated that the huge Portals [illegible] Pacific main entrance to the [illegible] are approaching the [illegible] twelve story height and the [illegible] of the [illegible] Empire [illegible] and 220 feet [illegible] completed [illegible]

Toy Bulldog Spouts Fight Wisdom in a Backstage Burlesque

AUSTEN LAKE

BACKSTAGE, IN THE STAR'S DRESSING ROOM a lean cat slept under a corner sink, its body curled around the exposed plumbing. Mickey Walker shrugged into his dinner coat and grinned with a face fleshed with easy living. In times so tough, said the old fighter, no man could scorn an opportunity to earn an honest dollar, even in the social come-down of burlesque . . .

Chorus ladies—gay creatures in sun-tanned nudity, clattered down the passages, blinking mascaraed eyes and horsehair lashes and stivering past on pin heels.

He had made a million, said Mickey, and spent a million. But he has no regrets. For now he meets more cautious men of his day who saved their money, denying themselves all frivolity and luxury, and wound up broke anyway when their investments vanished . . .

The brassy blurts of jig-music and on-stage tumult came through the door—a pistol shot and a woman's scream, shrill and sustained. Money had come too easy in the old days, said Mickey. Young fighters from the slums suddenly became rich and bet thousands on the horses or crap games, because it didn't seem real money they were spending . . .

A call boy rapped and said "Five minutes." Walker peered in the glass and patted his black tie, going through halls that reeked with grease paint and the stale aroma of cosmetics. In the gloom of the wings sinuous ladies in various conditions of silken undress peered from unreal faces. A hooligan comic in a fright wig poised like a sprinter waiting his cue, the glow of the olivettes striking his profile and showing the joint where canvas scalp merged with his forehead . . .

"That," said Mickey, "was often the way." He himself had been a great hand to give parties to entire roomfuls of people when he had it, consuming, say, $5 worth of food and drink himself and picking up the check for one and all, ten, twenty or fifty people.

Few Jobs for Old Fighters

[illegible]

[illegible] Mickey [illegible]

The border and foot lights dimmed to twilight blues as a girl with hard-looking calves pattered out and began shedding bits of costume fringe. Her movements were studied but secondary to anatomical interest. Her layers of beaded fringe were amazing in thinness and number. From the corner of the wings a masculine sea of dim, upturned and attentive faces could be seen. The music was formal . . .

"But the [illegible]," Mickey [illegible]

* * *

AND SO, SAID MICKEY, A FIGHTER'S declining years were not apt to be happy as he slid down the scale with his ring scars and cauliflowers, sometimes grinding away, sick part of the time and making a pathetic attempt to fight his way out of the little fight clubs and back to his old position . . .

[illegible]

"It's a ghastly trick," said Mickey.

"I thought it rather [illegible]," said I.

"No," said Mickey. "Nature endows the young fighter with health and fate gives him too much money before he has the intelligence to use either to his benefit."

* * *

Jack, Gene and Benny

THE STAGE CREW HUSTLED SCAFFOLDS and the garish props of the next scene, preamble to Mickey's monologue. Two ladies in fight scanties and miniature mittens, teetered on opposite stools for an interval of slap-happy nonsense . . .

[illegible] Gene Tunney had been one of the few [illegible]

[illegible]

"There was a third type," said Mickey. Benny Leonard, a cautious man with a dollar, had financial advice that seemed infallible. He invested his riches in real estate, but when the boom leaked away his tenants leaked away too, or had no money for rent. So, though Benny made lots of the stuff, and nursed it, he didn't get any fun from his savings and had to go back to fighting for a stake sufficient to pay the tax collectors.

Mickey sidled toward his entrance. A growly voice in the amplifier horns was beginning his introduction . . . "beloved figure" . . . "colorful personality" . . . "fighting champeen" . . .

"The trouble with a million dollars," said Mickey, as he ducked into the prompter's ell, "is that it shrinks and needs to be recharged like a battery."

He faced his audience grinning his infectious gargoyle grin. The applause was like the sound of summer surf. "In these tough times," began Mickey.

Bees Let Babich Out Again

By JOE CASHMAN

[illegible]

First Bob Quinn announced that Pitcher Babich had been turned over to the Hollywood Club under option and that Catcher Lincoln Wasem had been released outright to the same Coast League team.

[illegible]

The sextet includes Pitcher William Ford, Catchers Stanley Andrews and Joe Erano and Outfielder Jim Southern, all of whom were at St. Pete last spring, and [illegible]

Over at Fenway Park, General Manager Eddie Collins, in mailing of the last batch of Sox contracts recalled that five of his hired hands are already in the fold for the coming season.

[illegible] Red Sox.

The other three Fenwayites already accounted for are Pitcher Jack Wilson, Catcher Johnny Peacock and Second-sacker Bobby Doerr, all of whom, it is now stated, signed up before they left Boston for their respective homes last fall.

Bob Quinn's reason for optioning Johnny Babich out again is that the Bees West Coast operatives are divided in their opinions as to whether the big right hander's arm was o.k. the while he was winning 12 and losing 8 for the Missions last season.

The "prexy" figures that one more season in the Coast loop should definitely settle whether the ex-Brooklyn hurler is worthy of another big league trial.

[illegible] Johnny Riddle and [illegible] Andrew who made [illegible] showing [illegible] at Zanesville last season [illegible] Bees should never have cause for regret cutting loose the ex-Boston [illegible]

Silver Skates Derby Sunday Afternoon | Greatest Winter Ice Classic

By JACK CONWAY

THE GREAT Silver Skates Derby, which will be held at the Garden on Sunday afternoon, will be the most brilliant affair of its kind ever conducted anywhere.

Mr Boston

Speed skating featuring the leading skaters in New England, a Boston College relay race, two numbers in figure and other fancy skating by the vivacious and dazzling Miss Vera Hruba, colorful Czechoslovakia star, an orchestra under the direction of Conductor Rhode who was in charge of the music at the "Ice Follies," "Gay Blades" and other ice carnival offerings will thrill the crowd

The Silver Skates Derby is expected to be honored by the presence of Governor Charles F. Hurley, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, Police Commissioner Timilty, Park Commissioner Long, Fire Commissioner Reilly and other notables.

From the time the big show gets underway at 2 p. m until it ends shortly before 6 p. m., the crowd is certain to witness marvelous exhibitions of speed skating and also of fancy skating.

The addition of Miss Vera Hruba to the attractive program made a sensational hit with the public which proved it was very much Winter sports minded during the recent visit here of the "Ice Follies." The four evening performances and one matinee of the "Ice Follies" attracted 51,000 persons.

Sonja Henie has donated a trophy for the Silver Skates Derby, and has extended her best wishes for the Derby's success.

Despite the large expense of putting on such an elaborate show, the Silver Skates Derby is being offered at a price scale of 40 cents for adults and 25 cents for children 16 years of age and under. The committee in charge of the Silver Skates Derby was anxious that everybody should have an opportunity to witness the classic.

"Not being able to meet Chiminello in Boston in arranging the details for the match, I've placed the affairs in the hands of Archie Walsh of Joe Hines' 20th Century Club.

Walsh is my agent in making the amount to be wagered on the result, the alleys over which the match will be rolled, in picking the referee, foul line judge and judge back of the pins.

I trust that Chiminello will soon respond to this acceptance of his offer by addressing me care of the Queen City alleys, Manchester, N. H., or to Archie Walsh, 20th Century Club, Summer st., Boston.

Bruins Always Play to Win | Rangers Favored For World Title

By BILL GRIMES

[illegible]

BILL GRIMES

From their first season in the N. H. L. right up to the present day, Bruins have always played to win (which is more than can be said of one or two other clubs ... Maple Leafs. [illegible]

"I suppose we could have won the Stanley Cup two or three times," confessed Art Ross, "if we had jockeyed around and picked our spot. But such a procedure never entered my mind.

"We've always been out to win all the games possible and have been willing to risk our all against any opponent.

"There are great honors connected with the winning of a world championship," continued the Bruins boss, "but even the most partisan fan admitted after we'd lost the Stanley Cup to Les Canadiens in the spring of 1930 that the Bruins were the better club.

In fact, the 1929-30 Bruins were the strongest club that ever competed in the N. H. L.

"Look up the record of that outfit. It played 44 games during the regular season but yielded only 11 points to opponents, five losses and one tie.

On that occasion, Maroons won the Stanley Cup for Les Canadiens. We played them for the N. H. L. title and won, but practically ruined ourselves doing so. We were a push-over for the Canucks.

"By the same token, we paved the way for Rangers to take the world title from Toronto in the spring of '33. Maple Leafs beat us in the now famous marathon series for the N. H. L. title but we softened them up to such a degree that they never did get going against Lester Patrick's hirelings and lost three out of four games in the finals.

There is nothing the Bruins would like more than possession of the Stanley Cup, but it will never return here if I have to jockey around and get my team in some soft spot so as to take on the remnants of the survivors of the N. H. L. championship battle.

"We are out to win the American Division title. And I am well aware of the fact that if we accomplish that feat, we'll open the drive for the Stanley Cup against the only worthwhile team in the International Division, Toronto Maple Leafs.

"Let the other fellows play the percentages. The Bruins always have been and always will be out to win every game."

Failed to Make Playoffs Only Once

SINCE THEY ENTERED the N. H. L. eleven years ago, Rangers have been year in and year out represented by the best balanced and most formidable teams on the Calder circuit.

Yet scan their record.

They have won the Stanley Cup twice.

It was in the spring of 1928, Rangers met Maroons for the Stanley Cup and despite the fact that Lester Patrick was in the net during ... won the world's championship.

There was a certain something about ... well with the clear thinking fans. And they repeated in 1933, after the Bruins had softened up the Leafs.

In eleven years, despite their ... and balance, Rangers [illegible]

MUST PRACTICE LONG

[illegible]

It has long been my personal opinion that as much as 75 per cent of one's success in speed skating depends upon condition, only the remaining 25 per cent depending upon one's natural ability. Some will argue that 75 per cent is too high a figure, but those who've watched champions train will agree—it's a long difficult task to get into condition and the one that trains the hardest is almost always the one who's collecting the medals and trophies during the regular competitive season.

[illegible] of November and [illegible] after they began to [illegible] seriously.

CONDITIONING 75 PER CENT

In view of that evidence it does not seem unreasonable to place the value of conditioning at 75 per cent. [illegible]

Irving Jaffee, one of America's most famous Olympic skaters, used to recommend skating eight miles a day without a let-up as the best method of training, and many skaters follow such a procedure today, especially the Western champions.

The Eastern stars, however, are apt to skate slightly more than that a day but to break it up into shorter work-outs.

Lexington Six Determined To Reach Peak Next Year

Boys Did Well This Year, Despite Obstacles

Despite the fact that the Lexington high school sextet is definitely out of the running for the Eastern Hockey League title, the little squad from the historically famous town is deserving of a round of applause for a creditable showing in the circuit in the face of so many obstacles.

With the closing of the season tomorrow night at the Arena, the Minute Men are anxiously looking to next season—positive of being a contender for the loop pennant.

After the call had been sent out for candidates, Lexington found itself confronting many obstacles.

In the first place, the 40 boys who reported had a new coach. A system had been constructed under the former mentor in the school's only year on the ice but this had to be torn apart and a new style installed.

TRAVEL PROBLEM

Then the new coach, Arnold Nichols, had his own problems with a small turnout, and probably 15 players who would be at home on the ice.

As in every school, the problem of workouts popped up.

But the biggest task that hindered the progress of the outfit was the travel situation.

Practically half the hockey prospects were from the town of Burlington, which is eight miles from the practice site.

Afternoons, when Coach Nichols would try to cram in as much play as possible, the sessions would last until darkness made play impossible.

On these nights, boys living in Burlington were forced to walk the eight miles home as no means of transportation was possible.

Then another group came from Bedford.

Coach Nichols hopes to have the greater part of these obstacles removed for next season when, he predicts, the team will play a big part in the race.

ENCLOSED RINK?

He has installed a system in the junior high schools so that the boys will have a greater knowledge of the ice game when they reach high school.

He has made himself better acquainted with the play both of the opposition and of his own players.

The ice problem will be greatly relieved, for plans, not yet completed, are under discussion for an enclosed rink for practice sessions.

Coach Nichols' biggest task this year in making up his team was in picking his first string goalie. Everett Adams and John Rosa, both juniors, looked very good in the strings so that there was little to choose between the pair.

Jim Stygles, Dick Nevins and Leo Kiely were the outstanding forwards on the squad, forming the first line, with Herb Johnson and Bob Dodge on the defense.

This sextet turned in its best game of the season in the last week of December when it blanked the defending champion, Somerville high, 1 to 0.

Tufts Five Meets Grads Tomorrow

Former Tufts court captains band together tomorrow night for the highlight of the Tufts basketball season as the Tufts Alumni five faces the Tufts varsity on the floor of the Cousens gymnasium.

This game is always a tremendous drawing card for both Tufts students and graduates, for such athletes as Fred Ellis, Johnny Grinnell, Tony Radvilas, Izzy Harris, Lew Kyrios and Harry Hymanson make up the alumni team.

Coach Cochran, undaunted by his defeat at the hands of the Worcester Tech team on Wednesday, expects his varsity team to put the old-timers to rout.

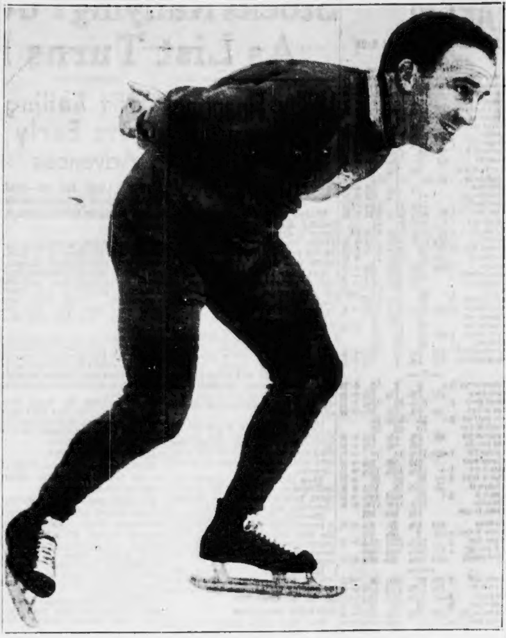
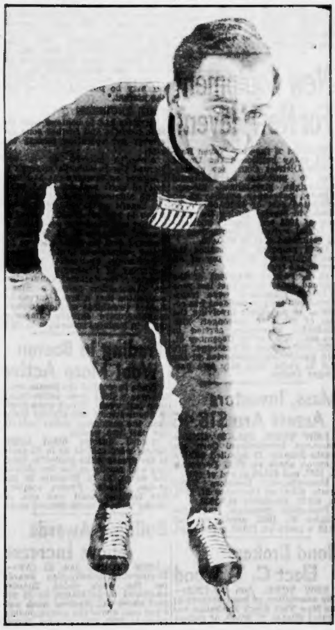
Jaffee's Skating Lessons



For Experts—Lesson 4—Balancing

Try clasping hands behind back during early part of race . . . Conserves energy . . . Aids co-ordination, and balance also helps you skate smoother, with less back strain.



For Beginners—Lesson 4—Knees Together

Keep weight and balance centered . . . Knees close together always . . . Lean weight over in rhythm with your leg motion . . . Allow arms to swing naturally without any jerky motion . . . Lesson Five, in pictures, final one of this series by Irving Jaffee, undefeated Olympic champion, will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Red Rolfe's Team Beaten by Berlin

BERLIN, N. H., Jan. 20—A record breaking crowd of 1400 basketball fans stormed the local schoolboy gym to watch Coach Red Rolfe, New York Yankee third baseman, and his Concord Business College hoop charges bow to the Berlin High Mountaineers.

The Garrettmen defeated the Rolfe quintet, 38-29, in the feature contest, and the Berlin High lassies edged out the Concord girls, 20-18, in a preliminary fray.

Rolfe received a thunderous ovation when Referee Red Taylor introduced him from the playing court.

Worcester Poly Noses Out Tufts

Worcester Polytech came from behind to win 49-43 over the strong Tufts courtmen in a mid-week game at Cousens' gymnasium. It was the Jumbos' first defeat on home territory.

Coach Bigler started his second Worcester team which allowed the Jumbos a 9-0 lead, but tired them all out so the Tech first team had little difficulty in evening up the score, and closing the first half 23-16.

The Jumbos rallied to tie the score at 40 all at the end of the third period, but were unable to stand the pace.

FROZEN FACTS

won the American Division title only twice, their first season in the league and in 1932.

Moreover, they finished twice in the runner up position but on six occasions they wound up in third place, while two years ago they failed to make the play off for the first and only time.

On the two occasions when they won the American Division crown, the Rangers' stay in the play offs was short lived.

The Bruins eliminated them in '27 in a two game total goals to count series, and they were knocked off in three straight games by Maple Leafs in '32, after beating Les Canadiens.

Even at this early date, Rangers are favored to take the Stanley Cup from Detroit Red Wings. Unless they change their tactics, Rangers will willingly set back and watch Bruins and Toronto ruin each other, while they are taking on such weaklings as Canadiens and Americans.

Here is how the Stanley Cup series loks now: Bruins and Maple Leafs will win divisional championships and the Rossmen will take over the N. H. L. title by eliminating Connie Smythe's aggregation. Rangers will walk through Canadiens and Americans and beat Bruins for the world title.

WHEN LITTLE BOBBY BAUER first attracted the attention of Connie Smythe, he was playing bantam hockey. Moreover, he was a center ice man.

Even today, Bobby is a great play maker, for he is one of the cleverest stick handlers in the N. H. L.

During one of the first scrimmages that Coach Jerry LaFlamme held at St. Mike's in the fall of 1934, "Pep" Kelly, a right winger, who is now with the Maple Leafs, was injured. The day he returned to action, Dan Willson, another right winger, now with Les Canadiens, was stricken with appendicitis.

Coach LaFlamme decided to shift Bauer from centre to right wing, and the little fellow did such a fine job on the flank that when Willson reported again he (Willson) was converted into a defense man.

Apparently, LaFlamme is a keen judge of hockey talent. At least, he was in the case of Bauer, for on his first bid for N. H. L. fame, the midget from Kitchener has made the grade.

Cunningham Runs Mile Saturday

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—Glenn Cunningham will run his first indoor mile of 1938 Saturday night at the Grover Cleveland games here.

His chief opponent will be Lou Burns of Manhattan College, who defeated Archie San Romani in a three-quarter mile event last Saturday.

Big Rockefeller Building Plan Studied

$12,000,000 Outlay Planned to Hasten Recovery

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—The announcement that Mr. John D. Rockefeller will at once begin the construction of a $4,000,000 building in New York City is interesting. This is to be followed soon by two more buildings, making a total outlay of $12,000,000.

The immediate purposes are twofold: (1) To provide jobs for unemployed labor, and (2) to show "faith in the future of American business."

These two purposes come together in the desire to relieve the depression and to hasten recovery.

If Mr. Rockefeller has reason to believe that America is now safe for capital and enterprise, and if he takes this spectacular means of showing that belief, his action will be helpful.

We badly need a basis for business confidence.

If, however, he believes that this is the way to remedy unemploymen, there is more to be said.

His statement is that "the practical answer to the problem of unemployment is to find jobs for men who want to work." But is that not the same thing as saying that the remedy for unemployment is employment, or the remedy for disease is health?

There are a good many practical limitations. The effect on other building activitiy and use, may throw men out of work.

The main point, however, is that he is doing something at a time he probably would not have chosen on a business basis. Costs are exorbitant, especially building labor. If this depression is so bad that such emergency measures are needed, the probability is that it will be a long while before the building pays for the cost.

• • •

Even if you look at it as mere "relife" for the needy unemployed, I ask you to think how many more people could be fed and clothed if the $12,000,000 were put directly into food and clothing for careful distribution to those in need.

Finally, such operations will do no lasting good as long as the causes of the building depression remain—high taxes, costs and political uncertainty.

• • •

In my opinion, the new project is far preferable to the PWA stuff. 1—The Rockefeller building will eventually be productive in terms of net revenue—if the New Dealers allow it. 2—It does not mean public debt, deficit financing and inflation. 3—It is not vote-buying, political demonstration, and bureaucracy.

To the extent that it is just another experiment in giving "work relief," it can't compete with the PWA and the billions we are giving the New Deal politicians to play with.

But why can't we make this move by a great business leader the starting point for getting rid of political waste and interference with honest business? Why not write Congress to let private enterprise cure the depression, by encouraging productive and profitable employment?

Boston Brokers' Market Opinions

I think it logical to expect considerable market irregularity over the next two or three weeks because of the effects of 1937 reports, dividend adjustments and uncertainty as to steel prices and the size of the freight rate increase expected to be announced some time in the early part of February.—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Co.

In the event that the marke decisively penetrates the 130 level and declines to around 127, we would be prepared to buy stocks for a good trading rally.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

Some trading demand may be influenced as the armament message comes along or other happening exerts momentary stimulus, but there is nothing in sight as yet to change the main price trend.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

Pending development of some real buoyancy in the rails and utilities, expect continued backing and filling elsewhere in the list. As trading policy, repeat recent suggestion to increase commitments on minor setbacks.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

N. Y. Department Sales Decrease

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (INS)—Department Store sales in New York and Brooklyn in the first two weeks of January were 0.6 per cent. Under those of the first two weeks of 1937, the New York Federal Reserve Bank reported today.

Sales in the week ended January 8 were 0.9 per cent under last year and sales in the week ended January 15 were only 0.2 per cent under the 1937 week.

Dec. Newspaper 'Ads' Top Nov.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Monthly index of newspaper advertising for December, issued by "Printers' Ink," showed a gain of 5.6 per cent over November, after correction for seasonal variations, but a decrease of 6.5 per cent from December, 1936.

Bank Clearings Below '36 Period

Tenth Time in a Row That Clearings Fell Under Like Week a Year Earlier

NNEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Bank clearings for 22 leading cities of the United States in the week ended January 19 totaled $5,214,937,000, a decrease of 20.6 per cent under the $6,564,780,000 for the like week last year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

It was th tenth time in a row that clearings fell under the like week a year earlier.

Moreover, the gap of decline under a year ago widened, for in the preceding week clearings were only 17.4 per cent under last year.

The January 19 week's clearings were $300,174,000 above the total for the preceding week, but a gain of $619,409,000, more than double this increase, was shown between the two similar weeks of 1937.

Clearings at New York city were $3,204,009,000, a drop of 23.5 per cent under the $4,188,644,000 for the 1937 comparative. Turnover at the other 21 cities aggregated $2,010,928,000, a decrease of 15.4 per cent under the $2,376,136,000 for the like 1937 week.

Of all 22 cities, only one showed a gain over last year. Clearings at New Orleans topped a year ago by 7.7 per cent.

The largest declines last year, excluding New York city's, were Boston, 25.8 per cent; Pittsburgh, 24 per cent; Louisville, 21.6 per cent; Atlanta, 20.9 per cent; Detroit, 20.4 per cent; Chicago, 18.5 per cent, and Buffalo 18 per cent.

Chicago clearings totaled $301,200,000, against $369,800,000 in the like 1937 week.

Crude Oil Output 'Gas' Stocks Up

A further addition of 1,616,000 barrels to stocks of gasoline last week and a boost of 39,800 barrels daily in production of crude oil, as reported by American Petroleum Institute, make the statistical position of the oil industry somewhat less favorable.

There are under way, however, several plans to remedy the situation.

One is the attempt being made by Texas conservation authorities to shut down wells in that state one day a week, which would cut output some 200,00 sbarrels a day; another is the meeting of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, a body representing leading producing states, which is now in session in Oklahoma City discussing production and consumption, and the third is probable curtailment of refinery runs.

Next week's figures on refinery operations should show a curtailment, since Standard Oil of N. J. and its domestic affiliates announced they planned a reduction of 15,000 barrels a day beginning January 15. It is believed other companies will take similar steps.

Curb Leaders Up In Quiet Trades

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Utility shares attracted renewed buying on the Curb exchange today and gains of fractions to about a point were scored by leaders of the group in quiet trading.

Most industrials also pointed higher in a moderate recovery from the sell-off earlier in the week. Small buying orders were sufficient to lift prices while traders waited for more decisive indications of the direction of federal policies and business.

Prominent in the advance in the second hour were American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, American Cyadine "B," Lake Shore Mines, Pan American Airways and United Gas. Babcock & Wilcox jumped 3 on small transactions.

Madison Sq. Garden Income vs. Deficit

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (INS)—Madison Square Garden Corp. quarter ended November 30, net income $147,239 vs. Deficit of $176,090 in preceding quarter and net income of $137,448 a year ago.

Net loss for six months was $28,851 vs. $36,114 in 1936.

Business Chiefs Have Own Ideas On Government

Forbes Says They Are Careful, However, in Baring Views

By B. C. FORBES

What not to do is sometimes as important as what to do.

Several business leaders hailed before senatorial quizzers had the question fired at them:

"What would you have the government do?"

Most of them preferred to stick to testifying about their own corporation affairs. The impression some gave was that they had no ideas, no suggestions concerning helpful action by Washington.

Although they feel more or less tongue-tied when confronted by federal probers, there is hardly one responsible man of affairs who does not have very definite opinions as to how the government, particularly President Roosevelt, should act.

WHAT THEY FAVOR

Banker Aldrich and one or two other testifiers did enumerate some of the things business favors: Modification of the capital gains tax, repeal or modification of the tax on undistributed corporation earnings, corrections of the admittedly faulty handling of the vast sums collected under the Social Security Act.

OTHERS ENUMERATED

Governmental economies with a view to progressing towards a balanced budget, recasting of the lopsided National Labor Law, restudy of the SEC, adoption of an equitable policy toward the public utility industry, and, above all, clarification of the administration's general policy affecting our whole economic system.

President Roosevelt has given one shining new example of what not to do: His dropping of the bombshell aimed at all holding companies. Curiously, this declaration has excited relatively little apprehension.

"He does not mean it," is the pith of a frequent comment privately and in print.

MEANS WHAT HE SAYS

The disconcerting truth, however, is that he does mean it.

A most trustworthy man confided to me many months ago that President Roosevelt had expounded to him sentiments exactly along the lines he talked in his press conference last week and this.

The President last year declared unequivocally that he was opposed to anybody—holding company, corporation, banking interests, any institutional group whatsoever—owning or controlling or operating enterprises located in two or more different parts of the country.

From other statements made to me by visitors to the White House regarding Mr. Roosevelt's apparent lack of grasp of industrial, economic, financial fundamentals, I wonder whether our chief executive realizes the part played in our whole modern scheme of things by holding companies.

Holding companies are not confined to the utility industry or to railroading, not by any means.

WOULD MEAN PANIC

With rare exceptions, our towering industrial organizations, the ones that have piloted America to the forefront of world leadership are holding companies.

A few examples: General Electric, General Motors, United States Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Anaconda, Bethlehem Steel, Texas Corporation, Standard Oil of California, International Harvester, Armours, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Ford.

Is it conceivable that either thoughtful citizens or federal lawmakers would indorse wholesale warfare against our largest employment-giving enterprises with a view to splitting them into little bits?

Is it conceivable that any such warfare could be waged "successfully" without precipitating a panic which, by contrast, would make our last one seem to have been a mild zephyr?

Yet, here is the official head of the whole nation lightly proclaiming that he intends to attack and abolish all holding companies, good or bad or indifferent, lock, stock and barrel.

In his next breath President Roosevelt assures the men filling the most responsible business positions in the land that they have "nothing to fear"!

Commodity Mart Turn Seen Near

Big Service Forecasts Flattening Out Then Uptrend

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

This writer is pleased to report that after a deliberate search for brighter financial news this week he can point to a third happening well worthy of reader's thoughtful consideration. It is the positive forecast of a nearby flattening out of the commodity price trend line to be followed by important improvement before the year is far advanced.

A confidential report sent to clients this week by a large service specializing in commodity price trends is definitely bullish. Pointing out that adverse forces responsible for the recent recession are well discounted the service goes on to build up a probable sequence of favorable events that is truly impressive. The highlights in brief are: that the government stage is set for more intensive spending, that a greater degree of co-operation between government and business is now in evidence, that raw material costs in most cases have been fully deflated, that labor is not only more efficient but wages are not increasing and in some lines decreases have been and will be accepted, that the government is to sponsor a program to stimulate new construction and, finally, that tax law modification seems assured.

On the basis of such reasoning coupled, of course, with the belief that there cannot be any broad decline from current levels and that the occasional instances of stabilization now to be found are the forerunners of a broad uptrend to begin some time in the second quarter—probably late—the service warns against staying out of the buying side too long. And as matters currently stand a goodly number of individual commodities have already been placed on the list that is definitely in a buying zone.

INFLATION AGAIN

Every once in awhile some market advisory service with a good publicity man makes the headlines with a forecast of a coming dose of inflation. Right now the basis for such comments is rooted in the recent statement of the President that a national income of between 90 and 100 billion dollars is the objective of the administration. Naturally it is difficult to understand how this level can be obtained without recourse to inflation. Another spur to such a line of thought is the buoyancy of gold stocks. Hedging against inflation is seen in their ability to climb. Perhaps, but a more accessable reason is that in every period of declining prices gold miners find their profit ratio climbs.

* * *

There are a number of other but less important reasons put forward in support of the inflation theory. But for the present we are not going to place much credence in them. And the reason is simply that a severe dose of deflation has been our lot and until it has either been counter-acted by an upturn springing from natural sources or until such time as it is obvious such will not be the case and artificial measures must be relied on, our worrying will be confined to finding the end of the recession.

* * *

STOCK PRICES DECLINE

A number of causes for the decline in stock prices this week might be described but we think that the behavior of rails is deserving of the blame. First the group refused absolutely to climb above a previous rally high, thus denying the industrials confirmation of their better action. Second comes the discussion of what to do with the carriers in admittedly weak financial condition. The theory of propping through government loans appears to be in favor but the action of the C & O in permitting Erie's receivership may indicate that railroad leaders are willing to put such situations through the wringer now.

* * *

There are several other causes that might be ascribed to the reaction. The French situation and the holding company debate are two instances. But when all is said and done in none of these does one obtain a satisfactory reason for believing that a great deal more decline must come to compensate for their baleful influence. In any event that is our hope and excuse for expecting some sort of support close under Wednesday's lows. In any event the risk of such hoping is not great provided advices to lighten up have been taken.

Stocks Rallying Power Fades As List Turns Irregular

Utility Financing In 1937 Less Than 1936

WASHINGTON, Jan 20—The Securities Commission made public today a compilation showing 1937 public financing by utility companies aggregated $664,304,635 compared with $1,463,151,551 in 1936.

The study listed 46 new issues of utility securities of all types in 1937 as against 97 in the previous year and 47, totaling $987,957,000, in 1935.

THREE ISSUES

The 1937 financing included but one common stock issue, amounting to $11,835. There were two common stock issues totaling $730,000, in 1936, and none in 1935. The three issues amounted to about one-fortieth of 1 per cent of all types of marketings in the three years.

Utility men have contended in recent discussions of the lag in utility expansion and construction that they were unable to sell common stock issues because of lack of investor confidence.

They attributed the public's unwillingness to invest to government policies such as the Holding Company Act and the TVA.

However, President Roosevelt at a recent press conference expressed the view that utility operating companies could obtain in their own territories all funds necessary for expansion.

He contended many were prevented from following this policy by holding companies which wanted to do the financing.

UTILITY FIGURES

The SEC study showed that in 1937 there was only one utility issue of more than $100,000,000.

This was $130,000,000 of first and refunding mortgage 3½ per cent bonds offered by the Philadelphia Electric Company on March 11.

There were two issues of more than $50,000,000, compared with six in 1935. There were three issues in 1937 between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 compared with 16 in 1936 and 23 in 1935.

New Equipment For New Haven?

Trustees of the New Haven Railroad today petitioned the United States District Court for permission to purchase 50 additional lightweight, streamlined, air-conditioned passenger coaches at an estimated cost of $2,100,000 to be placed in service during the summer of 1938 and also 10 additional Diesel switching locomotives at an estimated cost of $780,000.

It is proposed to finance the new equipment by means of an equipment trust.

H. S. Palmer, president of the railroad, today noted that last year 37,500,000 passengers were transported and that no accident has occurred to an extent involving the loss of life to a passenger, with 200,000,000 passengers carried in the six years ending December 31, 1937, without loss of passenger life and 1,414,000,000 transported in the last 21 years with only two passenger deaths.

Mass. Investors Assets Are $18.46

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (INS)—American International Corp. net assets January 15 equalled $9.31 a common share vs. $7.45 December 31, 1937, and $19.06 at end of 1936.

Massachusetts Investors Trust assets, $18.46 on December 31, 1937, vs. $28.87 December 31, 1936.

Prudential Investors, Inc., December 31, 1937, assets equalled $8.85 a share vs. $16.97 a year ago.

Bond Brokers Elect C. T. Wood

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (INS)—The association of bond brokers of the New York Stock Exchange has elected Clinton T. Wood, of Gilbert Elliott & Co., president. Charles M. Newcombe was chosen vice-president; Maurice A. Gilmartin, Jr., secretary and George D. Debevoise, treasurer.

Profit Selling Cuts Early Advances

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—Mild rallying efforts in today's stock market failed to follow through generally.

With industrials in the lead, recoveries of fractions to a point were widely distributed at the opening. Profit selling, however, later reared its familiar head and the advancing column backed away substantially. Small gains and losses were about even near the fourth hour. The pace was slow throughout.

Wall Street seemed somewhat encouraged by yesterday's conference between the President and national industrial chieftains, but most speculative forces were inclined to await a concrete cooperative move against the recession.

Short covering by those who thought the market may have been oversold in recent sessions was believed to have contributed to the early come-back gesture.

RAIL BONDS HELPFUL

Helpful was an upward reversal in rail bonds and better action of major commodities.

Ahead the greater part of the day—some slipped subsequently—were Bethlehem Steel, National Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, American Can, Westinghouse, duPont, Macy, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Consolidated Edison, Cerro De Pasco, Great Northern, Union Pacific and Eastman Kodak.

Homestake made another new top with a gain of more than two. Other gold mining stocks were narrow.

Lacking vigor were U. S. Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, General Electric, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Johns-Manville, Anaconda, Kennecott and American Telephone.

Coppers, although not weak, marked time as producers reduced their price to 10½ cents a pound, the quotation at which smelters had been operating. The latter subsequently lowered their rate to 10¼ cents. Some thought the revision was constructive in that consumers who have been holding off may be induced to come into the market.

ERIE TROUBLES

Carriers had to contend with the Erie troubles and further sour December net operating income figures.

Aircrafts loitered as it was learned the President's message to Congress on rearmament had been delayed until probably next week.

The automotive department had the benefit of General Motors' decision to put out Diesel engines in a large way, and the prediction of General Manager M. M. Gilman of Packard that no serious slump for motor makers was in the offing.

Bolstering sentiment was the testimony of Chairman Colby M. Chester of the National Manufacturers' Association before a Senate committee that a broad survey indicated two-thirds of the country's manufacturers expected improvement in business some time in 1938.

Trading in Boston Wool More Active

Trade in wool at the Boston market was a little more active today than last week. Prices were mostly about steady and slightly lower than the maximum prices paid in the past two weeks.

Graded quarter blood bright fleeces were sold at 30 to 32 cents in the grease while graded ⅜ blood was sold mostly on the low side of the range, 31 to 33 cents in the grease. Graded French combing fine territory wool was sold at mostly 70 to 73 cents scoured basis.

Building Awards Show Increase

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday amounted to $47,669,000, or 12 per cent above the previous week and 9 per cent above the corresponding week in 1937, "Engineering News-Record" reported today.

Private construction showed a 53 per cent gain over the previous week and 58 per cent over the corresponding week in 1937.

Rukeyser Scores Readjustment of Holding Cos.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—The report from Washington that the campaign against public utility holding companies is to be extended to holding companies in other fields creates new and difficult problems of readjustment.

The process of unscrambling eggs is inescapably painful and difficult.

As family heads are thrown out of work during the course of the readjustment, they will be supposed, however, to find consolation in knowing that their personal troubles are part of the price which the public is asked to pay for the struggle to make reality conform to the arbitrary dreams of the reformer.

The new effort is to tear institutions away from their historic roots and seek to replant them in accordance with a new theory of corporate horticulture.

GAP IN INFORMATION

But there is a gap in the information furnished by the dispatches from Washington. Nothing is said about what the tabooed holding companies will be expected to become.

My own first hand information is that the White House perceives a practical manner for the public utility holding companies to build an approved future out of their unchastened past.

Specifically, President Roosevelt, it is understood, thinks that there is a way out for the public utility holding companies, which have aroused executive wrath.

That way consists of transforming the top holding companies, which exercise managerial control over subsidiary operating and intermediate holding companies, into investment companies of the Scottish type, which are pure investment trusts not exercising managerial control over subsidiary companies whose securities are thus owned.

If it were argued that such a metamorphosis would leave some converted investment trusts with tremendous majority interests in concentrated operating areas, the political revisionists would doubtless say that in the preparation for the new era the newly created trusts could better balance their investment portfolios by swapping securities back and forth with other similar corporations.

MUCH GRIEF

But if the proposed reforms are to bring about an economic millennium, it is obvious that there will be much grief, much disturbed confidence, and much loss of both savings and employment during the transitional period.

In other words, the present working generation in the current subnormal period is to be required to pay a heavy price in order that in the future the reconstructed business corporations may better conform to the patterns which at the moment are in favor in high places.

After the painful rebirth of corporate enterprises, it may be too much to expect a prolonged period of peace and plenty.

For a decade or two hence, there may be another revolution in the wheel of political thinking, and the new wrath may perchance be against pure investment trusts of the Scottish type.

There is ample precedent for such flux in political thinking about business.

Now the holding company is frowned upon, and the making of consolidated tax returns is forbidden.

But prior to the Roosevelt administration, the very opposite ideas prevailed, and in order to get the best tax results business enterprises were encouraged by the manner in which the fiscal legislation was written to create top holding companies and to make consolidated tax returns.

BEING SACRIFICED

All of this may seem extremely academic to the family head, who is out of a job.

He may find little satisfaction in knowing that he and his family are being sacrificed at the altar of controversial corporate purification.

And even the theorists may rise to say that there has perhaps been emphasis only on the abuses of holding companies or integrating management, and heightening efficiency in operations. Practical financial men know that holding companies served a purpose in furnishing junior capital to the operating utilities at times when they could not have sold common stock on their own earnings record, especially during the early developmental period.

Heileman Brewing Defers Dividend

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (INS)—G. Heileman Brewing Company today deferred dividend action, due to business uncertainties.

John R. Thompson Company postponed until February 4 dividend meeting scheduled for today.

Naumkeag Steam Cotton Company took no dividend action.

Bank, Insurance Heads Meet With Officials

Bank and insurance company presidents met with city and state officials at the Hotel Statler today for the fifth annual seminar of the Boston Life Insurance and Trust Council.

A study of optional modes of settlement and insurance trust settlements was the theme of the conference. Irving L. Shaw, trust officer of the Granite Trust Co., of Quincy, presided.

Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, Insurance Commissioner Francis J. De Celles, and Bank Commissioner William P. Husband were among those attending.

Life insurance company presidents included Guy W. Cox of the John Hancock, George Willard Smith of the New England Mutual, Jay R. Benton of the Boston Mutual, and Chandler Bullock of the State Mutual at Worcester.

Bank presidents attending included Charles Francis Adams, chairman of the board of the State Street Trust; Philip Stockton, First National; Channing H. Cox, Old Colony; Robert D. Brewer, Merchants National; Allan Forbes, State Street Trust; Raymond B. Cox, Webster & Atlas; Robert H. Gardiner, Fiduciary Trust; Roger Pierce, New England Trust, and A. C. Ratshesky, United States Trust.

"Business Trends of 1938" was the subject of the luncheon address by Arthur C. Babson of the Babson Statistical Bureau, Wellesley.

Hospital Expert Backs Ice Cream as Fine Food

Ice cream is almost as important as medicine in modern hospital treatment, Grace C. Thompson, chief dietician of Vassar Brothers hospital in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., said today at the 28th annual convention of the New England Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

More than 200 gallons a month help patients at her institution forget their woes. And it not only is a whole lot pleasanter to take than other medicines; it's good for the patients, too, she declared.

"In fact, it's practically irreplaceable in many diets. Often it is the only food a patient can take.

"It is always the first thing we feed persons who have undergone throat operations.

"I am glad to see that people are beginning to realize ice cream is real food, and not just a trimming."

Miss Thompson advised mothers to arrange their childrens' meals so that ice cream would be a part of the regular diet rather than merely an addition.

"For the sick, of course," she went on, "we have to use the simple flavors. Vanilla and chocolate ice cream, and orange sherbert are usually best. Sometimes we give them banana ice cream, too.

"The nurses and doctors are just as fond of ice cream as the patients. They can have the fancier flavors, and I have found walnut and fruit combinations are the favorites."

Robert C. Hibben of Washington, secretary of the National Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, addressed the closing session of the convention.

Leslie Van Losberg of New York, vice-presidetn of the Joe Lowe Corp., told the meeting that Popeye, famous Boston Evening American comic character, would soon be heard over a national radio hookup three times weekly in a program sponsored by the makers of Popsicles and other frozen-stick manufacturers.

Popeye's program is expected to begin some time in May. Options on the character have been taken for a seven-year period—one of the longest radio programs in history.

✝ Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ.—Galatians VI., 2. ✝

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Francis Webster, rector of Christ Church, Boston. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. John B. Parry, Congregational Church, Wellesley

The Editor Says:

THE BIGGEST gold brick that the politicians on Beacon Hill ever tried to sell the "little fellow" is the idea that the proposed sales tax will solve Massachusetts' financial problems.

What these politicians know and lack the courage to say is that the forty-five million dollars they hope to extract from the pockets of the wage earners whose votes put them in office will give them MORE SPENDING MONEY.

The politicians' argument that the sales tax will reduce other taxes is so ridiculous and such an insult to the average intelligence that even the worst political faker ought to be ashamed to entertain it.

THE GASOLINE TAX

—was supposed to reduce every tax that was in existence eighteen years ago. Politicians made elaborate promises. The people believed them. And what happened?

The gasoline tax spread rapidly throughout the country and eventually reached the Federal Government. Politicians loved it. The filling station men collected the money, did all the work. The politicians took the money and spent it.

It worked beautifully—from the politicians' viewpoint. In eighteen years, more than FIVE BILLION DOLLARS went out of the pocketbooks of motorists into the hands of politicians.

But were other taxes reduced? Did the politicians keep their promises? CERTAINLY NOT.

In every State, and especially in the Federal Government, political spending skyrocketed.

In fact, it soared so high that if each of Massachusetts' 1,047,000 families was now asked to pay in a lump sum its pro rata share of the money that politicians on Beacon Hill and in Washington have borrowed, the cost to each family would be TWO THOUSAND, EIGHT HUNDRED AND SIXTY-SEVEN DOLLARS.

THE INCOME TAX

—was another invention of the politicians to reduce all other taxes, real estate taxes included. Again, what happened?

Last year, the Federal Government collected NEARLY SIX HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS and SPENT IT.

A study of the payments revealed that 61 per cent of this vast amount of money was taken from the savings of persons earning less than five thousand dollars a year.

And more than a million and a half returns were filed by individuals with incomes of LESS THAN TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS A YEAR.

Politicians had said that the income tax would "soak the rich" and "make the millionaires pay".

What actually happened was that the lion's share of the money came from men with wages scarcely sufficient to feed and clothe their families. The burden was piled on their backs.

Politicians could not find enough millionaires to keep them in spending money. So they SOAKED THE POOR, even though the soaking might take the poor's last dollar.

ANOTHER SOAKING

—for the person with the little pay envelope and undoubtedly the most heartless of all soakings will be the proposed Massachusetts sales tax.

Eighty-four per cent of the consumers' goods sold in this State are bought by people with incomes of less than $5000 a year.

Therefore, these wage earners, including the boy who does errands and earns $150 a year, will pay EIGHTY-FOUR PER CENT OF THE TAX.

The politicians are determined to collect FORTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS. Consequently, purchasing power will be reduced by FORTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS.

That means that there will be forty-five million dollars LESS to spend for jobs and wages. In other words, a large group of workers whose earnings now total forty-five million dollars WILL HAVE TO BE DISCHARGED.

THIS IS THE LIMIT

—and that is putting it mildly. We elect Senators and Representatives and pay them higher salaries than legislators in other States usually receive. AND WHAT DO THEY DO?

They devote their time to a confiscatory tax scheme that is not only bound to compel the average person to EAT LESS, WEAR LESS and SPEND LESS, but will also oblige employers to dismiss hundreds of men and women whose jobs represent their bread and butter.

And even after a man is thrown out of his employment he will have to pay the tax. IT WILL BE DEDUCTED FROM THE FIVE-DOLLAR CHARITY ORDER THAT THE TOWN OR CITY GIVES HIM.

Our frank advice to the politicians on Beacon Hill is simply this:

> "Vote for this outrageous tax and you sign your political death warrant. For as soon as the people learn that your 'yes' reduced wages and destroyed jobs, they will not tolerate you in any public office."

Undermining Democracy

By Nelson Harding

The rise of Bureaucracy is one of the most disturbing portents in America.

New in this country, it is one of the oldest evils of Government in the world.

Bureaucracy was among the chief evils that brought down the Byzantine Empire, rich successor to imperial Rome in the "East."

It was among the chief evils that bankrupted the heirs of Louis XIV and brought on the French Revolution.

It was among the chief evils of Czarist Russia, now no more.

Those obliterated Governments were tyrannies—that is true, and that is just the point.

All tyrannical Governments generate Bureaucracy. In no other way can they govern.

And conversely, Bureaucracy in a free country tends to generate tyrannical Government. In no other way can it operate.

Is it not apparent, then, that ENCROACHING BUREAUCRACY is undermining DEMOCRACY and LIBERTY here?

New York Day by Day

By
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.

ITS A far cry from the old type of janitor to the superintendent of the modern apartment spire. The janitor was faithfully portrayed in "Street Scene"—the shirt-sleeved dumb Ole standing eternally at the basement entrance, doing nothing save listening to cheap gossip.

He was paid little—sometimes $30 a month and cellar living quarters for himself and shiftless wife. Often he became involved in shuddery headlines. The modern superintendent in contrast is a model of efficiency, well dressed, easily bespoke and sitting at a glass-topped desk.

He is paid as high as $8000 a year, plus comfortable living quarters on the premises with light and heat. Many college men, especially newlyweds, seek such posts, for the jobs require much technical training and are not confined to collecting rents.

Such superintendents must know something of mechanical engineering, plumbing, carpentering and decorating. Also be quite a diplomat, for the job is in effect a sort of mayorship, smoothing out the constant wrangling inevitable among people in mass hub-hub.

Bird story: A little old lady living much to herself on Lexington avenue had a canary that sang full-throated for six years, and suddenly the chirrup stilled. The owner thought first it was because her pet was moulting, but with that over it continued silent. At a bird clinic she was told the bird was past the age of song. A day recently a carpenter came to do some repairs. In the middle of his pounding the canary burst into a clarion trill and has been singing with all stops out since. Another carpenter stimulating the world!

New York has dredged bottom on restaurant names. A chicken dinner place is called Bird in Hand. And a chain of pine upholstered spots, dubbed The Shanty. And there's the Brass Rail. As a rule naming a restaurant for a person—such as Rector's—does not succeed. Exceptions are Lindy's and Dinty Moore's. Nearly all the established Paris names are in use here. Such as La Rue's, Voisin, Foyot's, Mascotte and Ciro's. And several entrepreneurs have even borrowed that Hollywood horror—the Brown Derby.

With all its gastronomical variety, however, the most savory dish is not obtainable here. That is soupy or wet hash. Gone but not forgotten Reisenweber's had the nearest, a concoction designed for those bellying too long at the bar and called a Blazer. It was hash, a bit soupy and red peppered up enough to bead the brow, on tap at 4 a. m.

David Belasco about once a month would have his valet awaken him around dawn, dress and hop into gig to partake of an early morning helping. Harry Leon Wilson and Booth Tarkington in their circles of the town also made that depot a port of call.

Too, there was a caravansary on lower Sixth avenue. The name I think was Castle Cave with a proprietor who never forgot a name. It featured a famed dish, for those who had over indulged, called oysters Rockefeller. They were served on the half shell, touched up with a biting sauce containing tobasco, raw red pepper and garlic and came to the table in square boxes filled with steaming hot sand. Many swacked to the arm pits used to stagger into the place and after a setting or two of oysters Rockefeller would walk out as sober as anything.

Then at old Murray's was a pick-me-up invention of the actor John Mason that had a long run. Two raw eggs, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar and a spoonful of sherry.

The politest pedestrian was found on Fifth avenue the other day. Lowell Thomas asked his pardon for walking on his feet. "That is nothing," he beamed with an eloquent bow, "I walk on them all the time myself."

Thingumbobs: Jim McCabe, popular manager of the St. Francis at San Francisco, is now in full executive control of New York's Pennsylvania...Gary Cooper's father, a judge, has authored a book of philosophy...Dorothy Parker has been one of the chief lecture draws at Town Hall this winter...Mrs. Martin Johnson is skittish about crossing New York streets.

Some day I suppose I'll meet the fate of the usual innocent bystander. Nothing can keep me from edging the ringside at street brawls. Two husky truck drivers hopped from their seats this afternoon near Brentano's and went at it, hammer and tongs. As suddenly they quit and as one, jutting out a chin, passed me, he growled: "Maybe you want to make something of it."

I took on one of Ed Wynn's startled looks, grinned like a sick cat, and walked away stiff legged, dusting imaginary fluff off my coat sleeve and whistling off key.

Human Side of the News

By
Edwin C. Hill

THE ancient mediaeval guilds of bell-ringers in England revolt against "canned" bell music from America. Pickled bell music they stood for, when St. Clement's belfry staff got that way one Christmas eve a few years ago; but canned music never!

The invasion becomes an international issue in old St. John's parish, in Weymouth. Just as Big Ben, Great Tom, and Bow Bells begin performing nightly for the empire over the radio, some Connecticut Yankee engineers rig a simple loudspeaker device, hitched to a clock, which can out-boom or out-peal the best of the great bells of history.

They are technicians of the Seth Thomas Clock Company of Currier and Ives days, which has taken on the modern guise of General Time Instruments Corporation, with headquarters in New York.

They make a tubular chime, two inches wide and five feet long, which can do the work of a 12,000-pound bell and can be heard eighteen miles, with perfect resonance and all that can be desired of a flawless bell. This, of course, requires an amplifier and loudspeaker and certain specialized devices.

But if you wanted to, you could rig up in a spare closet a carillon which, plus radio, would cry down Big Ben, chiming the empire to sleep.

The English love their ancient bells. They have inspired nursery rhymes—"Oranges and lemons sing the bells of St. Clemens." There is a great bell-ringing art in which there are as many as 5000 changes in the ringing and chiming of the bells. Those bells, indeed, have become symbols of the security and continuance of Old England.

The early Saxons were famous bell-makers, and England in their day was known as the "ringing island." Big Ben, in the clock tower of the House of Commons, is the most famous, with its deep, sonorous tone, but it is not the oldest.

This distinction goes to Great Tom, in the belfry of St. Paul's Cathedral, four centuries older than Big Ben. It once hung in Westminster Hall, where Parliament met in the Middle Ages, and has been twice recast.

The genuine, unadulterated cockney must have been born within the sound of the Bow Bells of St. Mary's. But population now crowds in around St. Mary's, the roar of the city competes and, because of the complaint of office workers and anti-noise crusaders, the bells ring less frequently than they used to and there is probably many a cockney who never heard Bow Bells.

Things like that disturb Englishmen, and they cherish all the more the bells of St. Martin's-in-the-Field, of Westminster Abbey, St. Margaret's and the other ancient carillons and peals. "'When I grow rich' ring the bells of Shoreditch," English lads have chanted for centuries.

The guilds first became uneasy when a loudspeaker took over the job of the ancient chimes of Stoke Poges church, famous for its association with Gray's Elegy. The Ancient Society of College Youth has for several centuries manned the St. Paul carillon of twelve bells. It is proud of having rung 501s changes in four hours in 1881.

There are many other ancient societies whose members descend from many generations of bell-ringers. They became alarmed several years ago when the great carillon at Rouen, France, was equipped with a device to operate it by electricity. While some of the staffs of from eight to sixteen bell-ringers are amateurs, many are professional, and the continued advance of the loudspeaker chime will, for them, mean unemployment which has shaken England.

Things will never be the same and sleep never really sound with an alien boom and clangor and mellifluous chiming in the night, no matter how perfect the imitation. And it would take quite a few centuries for a loudspeaker to become moss-grown with treasured lore, even if it were British made.

The Political Parade

By
George Rothwell Brown

OPPOSITION of Southern Democrats to the Anti-Lynching Bill marks the first time that the purely Democratic wing of the New Deal, in taking one step along the New Deal way, ever looked ahead to consider, in advance, what next inevitable step would become necessary in consequence of having taken an initial step.

The old happy-go-lucky optimism of Dixie Democracy is becoming a thing of the past.

Some of the more radical reforms, which Southern Senators fear would follow the enactment of the Anti-Lynching Bill, constitute the real reason for the bitterest sectional fight that has been staged in Congress for years.

The reaction is having its effect upon two Administration measures, the Wages and Hours and the Farm bills. Both would lead to price fixing. Both would lead to drastic regimentatioin.

As Southern statesmen draw back from the breakdown of State sovereignty involved in the Anti-Lynching Bill, they are being backed, slowly at first, all along the line.

The power conferred upon the President by the Woodrum Amendment to the Independent Offices Act, to exercise a virtual veto as to specific appointments in that bill, would have been one of the greatest delegations of legislative authority to the Executive in all congressional history.

Yet, strangely, it is a power which Mr. Roosevelt has already assumed that he possesses. And he has used it.

By executive order, dated June 23, 1937, the President directed the heads of departments to set up "reserves." In other words, not to expend all the money appropriated by Congress to be spent.

This is essentially the power conferred upon Mr. Roosevelt by the amendment.

Many departments have established reserves, by refraining from spending all the money Congress directed them to spend. For example, the hearings on the Postoffice Department Bill reveal that Postmaster Farley has piled up unexpended reserves, as of November 22, 1937, of $23,000,000.

A good many gentlemen of the House fear that Mr. Roosevelt is going to pass the economy buck to them and put them on the spot.

At the extra session, the President recommended certain drastic economies. He wanted the road appropriation reduced from $216,000,000 to $100,000,000. He wanted the CCC appropriation reduced.

Congress, in the first supply bill to be passed, accepted the recommendation as to the CCC, but it balked in the roads reduction.

This and similar instances would leave Congress vulnerable to the charge that it is standing in the way of giving the country a balanced budget.

By giving Mr. Roosevelt power to balance the budget, and if he did not do it, the entire responsibility would be his.

All this is very pretty by-play. It shows that the gentlemen at the Capitol are becoming conscious of the $40,000,000,000 national debt.

When the country begins to fix the blame, Congress does not want to be the goat. Yet members of the House are by no means unanimously in favor of this surrender of power.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.

WE ALL admire a man who valiantly defends what he likes.

Such a fighter is Mr. Vincent Lopez, the most artistic (if an anti-jazzite like myself may say so) of the jazzmasters. He writes me:

> "In my estimation, music, like our great country, is a perfect democracy. It knows no race, creed or color, but charms and stirs the ears of you, you and you. I have felt that good music is not necessarily intellectual music, but music that you enjoy.
> "Whether you love the music-magic of violin strings or the groaning saxophone, you are a music lover, and no one should make light of your democratic choice."

That's a sound philosophy. Mr Lopez and I may not agree on jazz, but I see we DO agree on one vital American principle: We'll scrap for the right of each one of us to have the form of entertainment he likes.

"A foolish consistency in the hobgoblin of little minds," said Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Professor Charles A. Beard, historian, ought to remember that. Recently in a speech in Philadelphia he said rather triumphantly:

> "President Roosevelt had good reason for celebrating his victory over the Supreme Court in the reversals of its decisions between February and June, 1937."

As a matter of fact, nothing demonstrates so conclusively the intelligence and usefulness of the Supreme Court than these reversals of itself.

All of us reverse ourselves every day—that is, those of us who are not stagnating under the pressure of arrested mental development.

President Roosevelt has reversed himself politically more times than even the Supreme Court. Lincoln's whole career as President was founded on expediency. He never hesitated to reverse himself.

The man who said "CONSISTENCY, THOU ART A JEWEL" should have said "CONSISTENCY, THOU ART A MULE."

A reading of Professor Beard's works reveals that a healthy inconsistency is not one of his virtues.

New York to Baghdad by 'phone!

The city of magic, fantasy, Haroun-Al-Raschid, and Ali Baba is now united, vocally at least, to the latest thing in wide-awake modernity, New York.

Baghdad and New York, however, have now changed places. The old city of Ali Baba and the forty thieves is no more. Baghdad is now just a thriving town of trolley cars, traffic cops and jazz parlors, while New York has become the New Baghdad, the Miracle City of the West—and, good Baghdadians, we have many more than forty thieves in the big town!
